Giving Boys A-Firecrackers

I remember this top Atomic Energy official putting his head in his hands and saying, "If one of the major atomic powers were to provide the small nations of the world with bombs, it would be like giving all the small boys in the neighborhood a supply of firecrackers a week before Christmas and telling them to wait until Christmas Day to fire them. There would be some boys who couldn't wait."

These are the continuing worries of the Atomic Energy Commission.

One, that one of our enemies will "find a way to make the bomb in the bathtub", that is to say, they will come up with a relatively quick, simple, inexpensive method of production.

Two, that since there is no secret, the day will come when almost every nation will have the weapons. Almost all new nationalisms, with Egypt as a present example, are trigger-happy and irresponsible. Possessed of atomic terror, they would become time bombs ticking away the deadly hours.

Officials Shudder

Atomic Energy officials shudder at the thought of a lot of plotting, ambitious generals and politicians having access to the atomic bombs and missiles. Few would have any hesitancy about plunging the world into an atomic war. Indeed, most of the extreme nationalists deliberately would seek a way to bring on conflict.

This nail-biting worry now has emerged into the news stories.

Some top (but unidentified) government officials have forecast an eventual demand for a stockpile of atomic weapons by our Far Eastern allies once we go ahead and so arm the NATO countries of Europe.

These presently include the Philippines, Nationalist China, South Korea and Japan. Only one of these, the Philippines, is a tested ally. And while that republic has the most stable government of any listed, it is in the process of stabilization and any depression in the economy might shake it down.

Syngman Rhee, for example, for some time has been demanding access to such weapons. The thought of the volatile and erratic Rhee having control of atomic firecrackers causes our Army and State Department people to shake and sweat like a poor devil in the grip of a malarial chill, commonly called the buck age. The idea gives them nightmares and they wake in the night crying, "Oh, no. For God's sake, no."

And yet, they sweat almost as much for fear the Russians or the Chinese might one day lose such artillery from North Korea.

Formosa Base

We have set up a guided missile base in Formosa. It was this which, we now know, set in motion the actions which culminated in the anti-American riots. The badly handled court-martial of an American who had killed a Chinese became a catalyst. But the Communist plotting had begun with the news the United States would base a missile company there with atomic warheads. The most effective method of making the United States withdraw from Formosa would be by way of riots between the people and the occupying forces.

It is not conceivable that, for all the pledges of support to Chiang Kai-shek, we would provide him and his troops with atomic weapons. His situation is hopelessly frustrated unless he can return to the mainland via an invasion which we would supply, sustain and augment to the fullest. War, not peace, is the one last chance for the aging Chiang and his middle-aged army. And peace, not war, is what the White House and the American people want. Indeed, President Eisenhower had hoped, somewhat naively perhaps, that in this second term he would be able to give all his time to the cause of world peace and leave domestic problems to his staff. We will not be turning over atomic weapons to the Chinese Nationalists.

Japan has a deep feeling against use of them, an opposition seared there by Hiroshima. She would not likely seek such a stockpile. The Philippines might, for a long time, prefer to leave defensive use of them to us.

Even so, one of the fears is at hand. Some of "the boys" are demanding firecrackers.

British Help Oman King Fight Revolt

LONDON, July 22 (UP)—The British government announced today it had agreed to help the Sultan of Oman put down a rebellion in his oil-rich domain because the rebels are getting "outside" help.

British troops in Kenya, Africa, were alerted for action. Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, in making the announcement to the House of Commons, did not say who was helping the rebels.

QUESTIONS POSED

But members of Parliament posed questions about "armed incursions by Saudi Arabia" and "allegations... that modern arms of American type" supplied to the Saudis, had reached the Imam of Oman, the religious leader at the head of the rebellion.

The Imam claims he and not the Sultan is the rightful ruler of the little country at the southeast edge of the Arabian peninsula. "They have been given discretion within certain limits to take military action and small scale precautionary movements of our forces have already taken place," Lloyd said.

TROOPS AND PLANES

Lloyd did not spell out just what help the Sultan would receive but informed sources reported troops and planes stationed in the Persian Gulf area are ready to join the battle with British officers already in charge of the Sultan's forces.

A dispatch from Nairobi, Kenya, said a 100-man combat detachment of the British Cameron Highlanders was awaiting orders to fly to Oman, 1,500 miles to the northeast.

Indonesians Quit U.N.'s Forces

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., July 22 (UP)—Indonesia is withdrawing its unit of 580 soldiers from the U.N. Emergency Force in the Middle East, apparently for economic reasons.

This will be the first break in UNEF ranks since the force went on duty last winter.

The UNEF, made up of 6,064 soldiers contributed by the smaller nations, moved into Egypt and to the Israeli border to patrol and supervise the withdrawal of the Israeli army after the invasion of Egypt's Sinai Peninsula last fall.

Probers Hit Atlantan's Double Role for Union

WASHINGTON, July 22 (UP)—The Senate Rackets Investigating Committee developed today that the Atlanta lawyer for the United Textile Workers Union has a side business of leasing automobiles to the union for its staff—including one assigned to his own use.

Joseph Jacobs, the attorney, insisted that the profits from this business are small.

Jacobs said he gets $305 a week from the union in addition to what he makes from the leasing of the cars—a $50 a week retainer, $130 a week for serving as its Southern area director and a per diem allowance he said amounts to $105 a week. In addition, he testified, his law firm gets $38 a week for other services it performs for UTW.

SOUTHERN DIRECTOR

(In Atlanta, Mrs. Jacobs said her husband is the Southern director of the United Textile Workers with headquarters at 160 Central Ave., S.W. Jacobs also is listed as a member of the law firm of Jacobs and Jacobs, whose offices are at 160 Central Ave., Southwest.)

Jacobs said the UTW in 1955 became dissatisfied with its existing arrangements for leasing cars for its staff. Jacobs said he offered to "arrange" some different terms for leasing, then organized an auto leasing firm to lease cars to the UTW which he said has no other customers. The firm is the auto Leasing Co. of Atlanta.

Jacobs said he charged the union $100 a month for each Chevrolet automobile leased to it. Sen. McNamara (D-Mich.) said this was "33 1/3 per cent higher than a lease of a Chevrolet would be in Detroit."

INSURANCE CONTRACT

Under counsel Robert F. Kennedy's questioning, Jacobs said he gives the husband of "my kid sister" in Houston, Tex., the contract to insure the cars "for fire, theft, collision and public liability."

PRICE PROPPING

The CCC is the federal price support agency. It acquires the surplus stocks under price propping programs which are aimed at bolstering farm prices and income.

The disposal program was adopted by Congress in 1934 as another move to shore up the sagging farm economy. A Senate-House conference report on extending the program for another year awaits Senate action. The extension legislation also would increase the authority for foreign currency sales from $3,000,000,000 to $4,000,000,000 and the authority for use of surplus stocks to meet urgent needs of friendly countries from $500,000,000 to $800,000,000.

34 Counties Lose 5 Pct. Of Teachers

New Allotments Cut 107 Systems

By BRUCE GALPHIN

More than 100 Georgia school systems will suffer net losses in state-allotted teachers next fall, a State Department of Education report showed Monday.

Hardest hit are 34 counties, mostly in southwest and central Georgia, that stand to lose more than 5 per cent of their present allotments.

The report said there would be a new increase over the state of 400 teachers. Most of these will go to big-city and city-county systems.

Figures thus emphasized the ever-growing trend away from many rural areas and into the cities.

POPULATION TREND

Teachers are allotted to county and independent systems on a formula which generally parallels pupil enrollment. A change in the number of teachers in a county gives a rough idea of the entire county's population trend.

The country-to-town trend was sharply illustrated in Colquitt County. There the county system will lose 15 teachers, or about 6 per cent of its current total. Yet the independent system in the county seat, Moultrie, will gain 14 teachers, an increase of about 21 per cent.

SPOT CHECK

A spot-check of counties which are losing the highest percentage of their teachers next fall indicates that most of the drops are in Negro population.

The redistribution also appears to reflect the effects of the soil bank program, which is removing large portions of land from cultivation and thus removing families from the area.

Laurens County, which leads the state with more than 10,000 acres in the soil bank, is losing 12 teachers, about 6 per cent of its total.

In all, 107 county and city systems will have a net decrease in state-paid teachers next fall. Another 70 show increases, while 20 are unchanged.

Biggest numerical increases in allotments go to Atlanta, 173; DeKalb, 101; Fulton County, 80; Chatham County, 46; Cobb County, 44, and Muscogee County, 41.

A Dead Hand Summons Police To Body Here

A dead man's hand sounding an auto horn Monday led witnesses to discover the body of a Marine Corps sergeant in a car parked at Grant Park, police said.

Sgt. James Ralph McGonagill, 20, of 1052 Sanders Ave., SE, had a bullet wound in the right temple, Det. J. G. Adams said. Adams said a .22-caliber automatic was found beside the body and a spent cartridge hull was found on the floorboard.

Evidently after the shot was fired, McGonagill collapsed in the car seat with one hand pressing down on the auto horn, Adams related. He said several persons reported hearing the horn and went to investigate.

McGonagill had airplane reservations at noon Monday to return to his base in California, officers said.

The car was parked at the Millidge avenue entrance to the park.

Jury Hears Final Pleas At Clinton

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 22 (UP)

A defense leader in the Clinton trial said today Abraham Lincoln set the course for the South to refuse to obey the U.S. Supreme Court's 1954 edict against segregating whites and Negroes in the nation's public schools.

Ross Barnett of Jackson, Miss., a former president of the Mississippi Bar Assn., made the statement as both sides presented final arguments in the 11-day-old Clinton segregation trial.

POINTS TO FACTS

Before Barnett spoke, U.S. Dist. Atty. John C. Crawford Jr., urged the all-white jury to cling to the facts and not be swayed by emotional appeals.

The paramount issue, Crawford said, is not the question of segregation but the observance of law and order.

The case, described by defense lawyers as a "cause celebre" with history-making ramifications, centers on the government's charges that 10 residents of Clinton, Tenn., conspired with John Kasper, 27, New Jersey-born segregationist leader, to violate a federal anti-violence injunction.

CONTENT CHARGED

On trial in U. S. District Court, the defendants are accused of criminal contempt for allegedly fomenting disorders interfering with the court-ordered integration of Clinton High School last fall.

Waving his arms and shouting, Barnett told the jury:

"The Bible teaches us to segregate. It teaches us not to mix the seed. Just because the Supreme Court told us to desegregate doesn't mean we'll live to see it. The Constitution is above the Supreme Court."

Then he added:

"Abraham Lincoln set the course when he said he wouldn't abide by a ruling of the Supreme Court in the Dred Scott decision."

The 1848 decision held that a Negro slave, Dred Scott, could not base a lawsuit for his freedom on ground that his master had taken him to non-slave territory.

By contrast with Barnett's emotion-pitched appeal to the jury, Crawford gave a calm recital of events he said led up to the mob disorders which swept the little back-country town of Clinton last year.

After completion of government and defense summations, probably tomorrow morning, U. S. District Judge Robert L. Taylor will charge the jury of 10 men and two women.

Included on the agenda is discussion of the repatriation of Soviet and German citizens from each other's territory.

He asserted that to slacken these efforts "would be to risk our very existence and... almost insure Soviet indifference to our disarmament proposals."

Dulles Insists Russia Prove 'Seriousness'

By RUSSELL BAKER

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, July 22—Secretary of State Dulles urged the Soviet Union tonight to give "convincing proof" of its "seriousness" about a disarmament agreement.

Until Moscow supplies such proof, the United States will continue to test nuclear weapons and strengthen its security alliances, Dulles said in a radio and television speech.

"SLIGHT PROGRESS"

"Some slight progress" toward agreement has been made in the talks of the U.N. disarmament subcommittee in London, but on fundamental issues the Soviet Union still is at odds with the United States, Dulles said.

"Already large nuclear weapons are so plentiful that their use in a general war could threaten life anywhere on the globe," the secretary said. "And as matters are going, the time will come when the pettiest and most irresponsible dictator could get hold of weapons with which to threaten immense harm."

The burden of Dulles' contention was that the U.S. proposals, while admittedly limited, were sound and that some first-step agreement was urgently needed, but that the United States would not sacrifice its security in the cause of urgency.

CONVINCING PROOF

"Until we see convincing proof that the Soviets are serious about arms limitations, our safety primarily depends on having the best weapons, large and small, that we can develop," he said.

"This means continued testing."

"Until we have proof of Soviet seriousness in arms reduction, we must as a matter of simple self-preservation do our part in sustaining the vigor and strength of our security arrangements, including defensive alliances," he added.

He asserted that to slacken these efforts "would be to risk our very existence and... almost insure Soviet indifference to our disarmament proposals."

New Thrust Is Directed At Injunction

By ALBERT RILEY

Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, July 22—The Senate voted, 90 to 0, today to strike from the civil rights bill a provision that would have specifically authorized the use of troops to enforce judicial decrees.

This provision originally was incorporated in part three of the bill and was heavily attacked by Southerners as being designed to force racial integration in Dixie with bayonets.

After making this concession to the Southerners, a bipartisan coalition of Democrats and Republicans argued that part three would still permit the use of federal might, other than troops, to force racial mixing in the schools and other public places.

A decisive vote on part three is not expected until late tomorrow. So confident were the Southerners today that they had the votes to strike out all of part three, they agreed to go along with a minor face-saving concession to the Eisenhower administration.

Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.), modified their Southern-backed amendment to strike out all of part three, by permitting some of the language of that section to remain in the bill.

SUITS RUSSELL

Georgia's Sen. Russell said that concession didn't amount to much and the Southerners will go along with it.

Under the original Part Three, the attorney general would be authorized to seek federal court injunctions to protect civil rights in the South. The Southerners charge this also is a device to force school integration.

Today's Senate action repealed an old post-Civil War law that

$17.5 Million Gouge On Jets Laid to GM

Auditors Blame AF 'Laxity' And Company 'Misstatements'

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP)—Government auditors reported today that General Motors Corp. overstated or misstated production costs on a 1952-55 contract for fighter planes and reaped $17,459,000 in "excess" profits.

The auditors blamed Air Force "laxity" and "excessive estimates" submitted by Comptroller General Joseph Campbell to a House Armed Services subcommittee. Chairman Hebert (D-La.) called the figures "shocking" and bordering on actual fraud.

"If a little businessman would do this," Hebert said, "he would be accused of keeping two sets of books."

In Detroit, a GM spokesman said the firm had no immediate comment.

Hebert said the subcommittee planned to take no further action immediately. He said, however, he expects the government to seek recovery of the money through renegotiation of the contract.

He also said Air Force contract negotiators should be "called on the carpet." He directed the committee staff to obtain a full report of the contract personnel and their present duties.

Hebert said "the most serious thing of all" was testimony by government auditors that General Motors has refused access to its cost records on another defense contract.

Lawrence J. Powers, defense accounting director, testified this contract involves Army Ordnance and the Cadillac Division of General Motors. Powers said GM officials have ignored repeated letters by the comptroller general, the latest written July 9.

The House Government Operations Committee called for construction of a multi-billion dollar system of air raid shelters to shield the population from blast, heat and radiation in any nuclear attack.

$20 BILLION
In a report to the House, the committee said it has received testimony that such a system could be built and equipped for 20 billion dollars.

It chided the administration for retaining its policy of evacuation in the event of an atomic attack on any large city. The committee said such a plan would not work.

In addition, it said, the cost of constructing the necessary highways would cost more than a shelter system.

GOP DISSENT

An all-Republican minority dissented from the shelter recommendation on grounds that further study is needed. In a separate report the minority said, "there is no benefit in taking steps simply for the sake of taking steps and then possibly find that we have wasted our substance in a Maginot Line type of false security."

The committee majority approved the report of a subcommittee which held hearings on fallout, evacuation, shelter construction and other civil defense problems last year and this.

The subcommittee said there was "overwhelming evidence" development of super-hydrogen bombs, with their vast fallout spread, had rendered obsolete the Federal Civil Defense Administration's plans to evacuate big cities and target areas under threat of atomic attack.

MASS EVACUATION

Although the first super-H-bomb was exploded at Bikini in March, 1954, the report said, the civil defense agency as late as January, 1956, was insisting evacuation was the only answer to giant size atomic weapons.

Officially the plan still has not been abandoned although Val Peterson, who recently resigned as civil defense director, told the subcommittee at hearings this year he had recommended a shelter construction program to the White House.

"The subcommittee believes that the FCDA has been grossly negligent at the possible expense of our national security if it is only now taking in consideration the hazards of radioactive fallout," the report said.

Cairo Arms Deal With Reds Broke Western Monopoly, Nasser Cries

CAIRO, July 22 (AP)—President Nasser told Egypt's first revolutionary Parliament today he broke a munitions monopoly by turning from the West to the Communist bloc for weapons.

Russian-made MIGs of the Egyptian air force roared low across the skies as Nasser proclaimed a victory for Egypt in what he called a "war of independence" against "imperialists."

His three-hour speech opened the first Egyptian Parliament since the latter days of the Farouk regime.

The address came on the eve of the annual four-day celebration of the July 1952 revolutionary coup that sent King Farouk into exile and led to the Nasser regime.

Nasser said the arms deal he made behind the Iron Curtain was one of his greatest revolutionary achievements.

"If we were to cast a cursory glance at our debts and credits in these five years," Nasser said, "it is a certainty that our greatest gain is hope."

Nasser told of plans for establishing an atomic reactor and nuclear physics laboratory.

He declared that despite the withdrawal of the Western offer to help build the Aswan Dam, Egypt was going to push ahead alone in the first phase of the project.

Of the British-French-Israeli action last fall, he declared, "This foolish adventure against us failed but there were also indications this foolish adventure was the last of its kind."

On economics, Nasser said the government has appropriated 800,000 acres for distribution to landless peasants.

Nasser said 282,650 acres already had been distributed to 68,737 families.

"Big landowners now hold only 6 per cent of the land, while small owners possess 50 per cent," he said.

Nasser again declared his opposition to foreign pacts. He singled out the Western-sponsored Baghdad Pact, which has been joined by Arab Iraq.

"If the Arab States had joined the Baghdad Pact the attention of these countries would have been directed to possible danger from the north and diverted from a certain danger in the heart of the Arab area—which is Israel," Nasser said.

"If that had happened it would have meant liquidation of the Palestine problem in favor of Israel."

"Consequently, Egypt would have been left alone to face Israel and its expansionist ambitions," he said.

The ship is carrying 3,357 tons of Burma rice and 15 cases of general cargo from Rangoon to the Israeli Mediterranean port of Haifa.

Since the 1948 Palestine war, Egypt has barred Israeli ships from the canal and has sought at times to bar cargo bound to or from Israel in foreign ships.

Egypt claims the right, insisting that a "state of war" still exists between it and Israel and says security is involved.

The Danish ship will proceed through the nationalized waterway in a northbound convoy, perhaps tomorrow, Egyptian authorities said.

Normal procedure, an official said, is to permit limited cargo through to Israel if it is addressed to individual importers and is carried by a non-Israeli ship. If it is addressed to the Israeli government or its military forces, the cargo may be confiscated, the official said.

$33,759,850,000 For Arms Wins Joint Approval
WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP)—Senate and House conferees reached complete agreement today on a compromise $33,759,850,000 Defense Department appropriations bill.

The measure, as it now goes before the House for action first, carries $197,125,000 more than that body originally voted. But the compromise figure is $774,379,000 less than the Senate had allowed.

The total agreed upon was $2,368,150,000 under the budget estimates for this fiscal year which President Eisenhower originally recommended to Congress.

The compromise bill allows the Army $7,264,550,000, the Air Force $15,930,220,000 and the Navy, $9,866,375,000.

Dr. Graham May Stay to Labor Day

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK, July 22—The Rev. Dr. Billy Graham may extend his Madison Square Garden evangelistic crusade through Labor Day.

Plans to continue the campaign beyond its scheduled closing Aug. 10 are known to be under serious consideration by Graham team members and the local sponsoring committee.

The crusade began last May 15 with a tentative windup set for June 30. It has been extended twice—once to July 20 and again to Aug. 10.

Last Saturday night, the evangelist drew 100,000 persons at a rally in Yankee Stadium. It was the largest crowd ever to jam into the huge ball park.

With this in mind, Graham supporters are pressing hard for a continuation. The evangelist, it was reported, was surprised at the vast turnout in the stadium but attributed it to the "working of God."

Dr. Graham ended two days of rest tonight. Tomorrow morning he is scheduled to play golf—a favorite relaxation—with the Rev. Dan Potter, executive director of the Protestant Council of the City of New York. The council is sponsoring the New York crusade.

Tomorrow night, at the Garden, the Graham crusade will open what may be described as its third phase. There are no advance group reservations for the next few days—a period when the evangelist will depend solely on his supporters and other persons.

Quiet Gunman Corrals 9 In Vault, Grabs $42,857

ASHEVILLE, N.C., July 22 (AP)—A big, soft-spoken bandit stuck up Wachovia Bank & Trust Co.'s north side branch here today, herded nine persons into a vault and escaped with $42,857 in cash.

"This is a holdup," the unmasked gunman, estimated to weigh 250 pounds and standing six feet four, told Cecil Tallen, in charge of the bank.

To each of five women tellers, the big man, carrying a sawed-off shotgun and pistol, tossed a paper bag in staging North Carolina's third bank robbery in 11 days.

"Fill 'em up," he ordered. The gunman then marched the tellers, Tallen and Robert V. Carter, in charge of the small loans department, toward the vault. En route he added a 10-year-old girl, who was in the branch to bank for her parents, and a customer who had just entered.

The nine entered the small room and the bandit swung close the heavy metal door. Still carrying his shotgun and pistol, he walked briskly out, passing an unsuspecting janitor.

Tallen told investigators the gunman, attired in a gray work uniform and wearing a soft hat low on his forehead, upon entering had carried a cardboard package and gone to a counter, where he pretended to be writing a check. When the crowd of customers had thinned out, Tallen added, the intruder opened the package and produced the shotgun.

Search for a ship reported sinking after a collision was called off by the Coast Guard at 2 p.m. today. A spokesman said, "We assume it was a hoax."

The Coast Guard, however, asked all ships off the coast of the Carolinas to continue watching for any evidence of a ship in distress.

Several ships reported Sunday night they heard a radio message—"SOS, SOS, sinking fast in collision." The message included the call letters "CLEH," which indicated, the Coast Guard said, that the message was sent by a ship of Cuban registry. Coast Guard listing, however, contain no vessel carrying those call letters.

Miffed Mystery Writer Gardner And 'Court' Quit Sheppard Inquiry

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 22 (AP)—Mystery story writer Erle Stanley Gardner said here tonight that the court would continue its investigation despite an almost complete lack of official cooperation.

Later, however, in a hotel room news conference, he said: "We are just going to pick up the pieces and go back to making a living. We are going to get out of here, and we are not coming back unless pressure from readers of the Court of Last Resort is so great that we must."

Gardner was obviously miffed by what he considered misinterpretation of the motive and actions of the court in its investigation into the "confession" last week by Donald J. Wedler, 23, a burglary suspect held at DeLand, Fla.

Wedler said he killed a woman in the Cleveland area about the same time and under circumstances similar to the brutal murder of Mrs. Sheppard in the bedroom of her lakeside home at Bay Village, a Cleveland suburb.

"I made no inconsistent or conflicting statements in my report to Gov. O'Neill about Wedler. We have no desire to see Dr. Sheppard turned loose. We have no axe to grind. Many persons have pooh-poohed the court as a commercial enterprise but I can assure you our interest in the matter is to see that justice is done."

Gov. O'Neill today, in reversing his earlier decision to allow a lie test to be given to Sheppard behind the walls of Ohio Penitentiary where he is serving a life term for his wife's murder, said he was prompted by what he said was the possibility that Wedler's story was a "plain deception."

The handsome 33-year-old Sheppard, an osteopath, has said he was willing to take the test. He had flatly declared his innocence.

Gardner had intended to come to Columbus to administer a lie test to Dr. Sam but he said he would only "rendevouz with the court, tote up our losses, pick up the pieces and go home."

Gardner, here for a meeting with other members of the court—a group of crime experts who seek to determine the innocence of persons they believe wrongly convicted of crimes—said on his arrival at Columbus Airport that the court would continue its investigation despite an almost complete lack of official cooperation.

Father Shoots and Knives Suspect in Child-Phoning

A man charged with child-molesting Monday was seriously injured in a shotgun and knife attack by the father of a young girl, police said.

Identified as Edwin C. Largin, 30, of 656 Vernon St., SE, the molestation suspect was admitted to Grady Hospital suffering a gunshot wound of the left leg and a stab wound between the shoulder blades. Detectives N. M. Taylor and W. W. Gable said. Detectives said Largin, a plumber, was under guard at the hospital and would be held for investigation.

The incident occurred shortly after noon on Glenrose circle, SW, where detectives had just abandoned a vigil set up to catch the person responsible for making improper advances in telephone calls to young girls. Here is the story as told by the detectives:

STORY TO DETECTIVES

A 9-year-old girl residing in the Glenrose circle circle received a telephone call Monday in which the caller used opprobrious words and asked if any young girls in that section were alone during the daytime. Next he called another Glenrose circle address.

Officers suggested that residents make an appointment with him. They said he called the second address again Monday when the parents were at home and the mother, impersonating a young girl, invited him to stop by. The appointment was for 12:30 p.m.

WAITED 4 HOURS

Taylor and Gable said they waited from 11 a.m. until 3 p.m. When he failed to appear, they left, instructing the family to contact them by radio if he appeared or called again.

Shortly after the detectives left, a man appeared at the door and identified himself to a young girl who answered, the door as "Bob," the man who had called, officers said. The girl invited him in.

The father, waiting with a 410-gauge shotgun, stepped out into the hallway. Witnesses said the man turned to run and the father shot him in the left leg. As the father reached for another shell, the intruder grabbed the shotgun, ran out the front door and tossed the gun into a flower bed, witnesses said.

ATTACK WITH KNIFE

The father then attacked him with a knife, officers were told. Patrolman W. R. Stewart, who was nearby, ran out and separated the two. He took Largin into custody.

Officers said the person making the calls said he was making a sex survey. They said the red-haired Largin had been arrested previously on charges of assault with intent to rape, possessing obscene literature and using opprobrious words.

The father was charged with disorderly conduct.

Liberals Plan Rights TV Drive, Russell Told

Constitution Washington Bureau WASHINGTON, July 22—Southern senators have learned that civil rights advocates have planned a television and radio campaign across the nation to try to sell the civil rights bill to the people.

Look Into Syria, Israel Asks U.N.

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector July 22 (AP)—Israel again requested today U.N. investigation of "Syrian troop concentrations along the Israel border." The request, the second in three days, also protests "the continued arms flow to Syria, border incidents initiated by Syrians, the campaign of incitement against Israel in the Syrian press and radio, and aggressive anti-Israel pronouncements by Syrian Premier Sabri Assali."

senators will counter this by a demand for "equal time insofar as the Southerners are able to pay the costs."

Russell learned that Sens. Douglas (D-Ill.), Humphrey (D-Minn.), Javits (R-N.Y.) and others have offered recordings and films to radio and television stations for daily five-minute "timely statements" on the civil rights issue.

The Georgia senator received a number of telegrams, letters and telephone calls from broadcasting stations notifying him of the procivil rights offer.

Most of these stations told Russell they would like, if possible, to provide equal time for opponents of the bill.

Armed with a ruling by the Federal Communications Commission that stations must provide "equal time for both sides" on such issues, Russell has offered to these stations transcriptions and "films opposing what Southerners call "force legislation."

The Georgian has recorded a five-minute tape at the request of a Columbus, Ohio, station, and is being joined by Sens. Talmadge, Stennis and Eastland of Mississippi, Long and Ellender of Louisiana, Smathers and Holland of Florida. He also welcomed support in this venture from Sens. Aiken (R-Vt.), Anderson (D-N.M.), O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) and others opposed to the injunctive powers of the bill.

East Point Businesses Reminded of Licenses

Reminders have been sent to all East Point businesses who have failed to renew their business licenses, Dan T. Trimble, city license inspector, said.

Trimble said an additional 10% of the cost of the license will be added to licenses and cases will be made against delinquent businesses after Aug. 1.

One problem for the Southerners will be financing. It was hinted here that such organizations as the NAACP and ADA might be helping finance the procivil rights broadcasts and telecasts. The Southerners have no such organizations to help them pay the costs.

The report here was that the procivil rights airwave "statements" have been offered to 2,500 stations across the country.

A source close to the Senate recording studio estimated that one such five-minute program over 2,500 stations in one day, would cost $9,700. Multiplied by 10 days this would run the cost up to $97,000.

In his answer to stations requesting the Southern side of the question, Russell said his group is ready to try to supply the Dixie arguments to interested stations, although, "We do not have the financial resources available to Griffin Denies Offer of Job At Stone Mtn.

Gov. Marvin Griffin denied Monday that he has been offered a job at $25,000 to $30,000 a year to promote a Civil War Centennial celebration at Stone Mountain after he leaves the office.

"It just isn't so," he told his news conference, "but if there is such a job I would be interested to know about it."

He had been reported as telling a conference of state department heads that he planned to take such a job.

What he really said, he told newsmen, was "I would be glad to help promote a centennial celebration in that vicinity."

Griffin recently issued an appeal for an expression of public opinion on whether the state should buy Stone Mountain as a tourist attraction.

He said that his mail so far has been preponderantly in favor of state purchase of the mountain.

Griffin Selects Farm-Industry Promotion Panel

A committee of five persons was named by Gov. Marvin Griffin Monday to assist in planning programs to emphasize the state's potentialities in agriculture and industry.

The committee is composed of Dr. C. C. Murray, dean of the University of Georgia College of Agriculture, chairman; Agriculture Commissioner Phil Campbell, Commerce Secretary Scott Candler, Cecil W. Chapman, state soil conservationist, and E. Lee Carteron, general manager of the Southeastern Fair Assn., Atlanta.

Griffin said the committee will develop ideas and programs to keep Georgians advised of the state's agricultural and industrial progress while at the same time "publicizing Georgia's growing importance to the nation as a whole."

Corner Shop Coup

Probably you read the Atlanta Journal's fascinating feature of July 11th that revealed how a Tech Professor, Dr. George Walker, bought a landscape painting that turned out to be an original by Joseph Vernet, famous Court Painter of the Louis XV, XVI period. "Dr. Walker bought it in a local antique shop," read the story. The "local antique shop," friends, is US—Davison's Corner Shop. Surprised, anyone? Not us. Turning up Old Masters in disguise is an old story to our Corner Shop's Jeannette Burns, who has an uncanny sixth sense for spotting the real thing (even when she doesn't know it). Twice she has lucked in on English Chests, each bearing the signature of a famous 18th Century cabinet maker. Once she brought home an English secretary, pried open the locked secret drawer and found a collection of seashells and an ancient volume on conchology, now the prized possession of the Smithsonian Institution. Just goes to show, if you want to strike it rich, better come to Davison's Corner Shop, 5th floor. And if you find an out-of-this-world bargain (like the lucky Professor) that's your fabulous (and we hope typical) Davison's Luck. Good hunting!

We're still laughing

The Big Blast (namely, Jerry Lewis) that ripped through this emporium like Hurricane Audrey, blew itself out almost a fortnight ago. The polished glass counter tops, amazingly, bear no marks of the whooping, guffawing mobs that roosted there. The roof, miraculously, did not cave in. But dignified 67-year-old Davison's will never be quite the same. We're still splitting our sides as the stories go round of what went on during our wackiest, wildest guest-star appearance since Davy Crockett. There's the stout, middle-aged matron who keeps telling everybody proudly, "Did you see him point at me and yell, 'Hi, Babe!' My grandchildren were so impressed." And our beautiful blonde model who won't take off a certain Fall beret because HE said, "What's that gazapos on your head—a hot water bottle?" And of course, there was the six-year-old lad who bore down on his hero, clutching a paper to be autographed. Jerry fixed him with a glowering eye and screeched, "Go home, Son, you're drunk!" Yep, jeers or jibes, the swooning crowd of more than 5,000 lapped up every raucous Jerry-ism. Maybe after we have a chance to undergird the foundations, we'll be ready for a repeat performance of the world's funniest funny man. Meanwhile, pass the tranquilizers, friends. We've still got Jerry-itis.

Civil Defense Gets One More 'Report'

The Government Operations Committee of the House of Representatives yesterday issued an alarming report accusing the administration of gross negligence in failing to provide adequate protective measures against mass deaths from nuclear weapons and radioactive fallout.

The committee asked for construction of a multibillion-dollar shelter system to protect the population from blast, heat and radiation in case of nuclear attack.

The GOP minority on the committee dissented in the report on grounds that "further studies are needed."

Further studies, indeed? There have been studies upon studies with the end result that no national plan for survival as yet has been arrived at after more than a decade. There have been so many disagreements about responsibility for civil defense—whether it lies in federal, state or local hands—that little has been done to work out a coordinated national program.

There is considerable talk now that the major objective of past civil defense planning—evacuation—is obsolete. In the era of the supersonic guided missile, there is much on which to base that opinion. Attacks can come in the future with little or no advance warning.

The minority report warns that a shelter program might lead to a "Maoist Line" type of psychology.

All of which points to the basic policy of our present military planning. That policy is to maintain massive retaliatory strength as a deterrent to attack. It, too, can lead to a "Maoist Line" type of thinking and a false feeling of security. Meanwhile, reductions in armed forces may make it impossible to fight other than a nuclear war.

It might be that a shelter program will have to be undertaken to prevent certain destruction of most of our civilian population in atomic war. But thus far Congress has refused to support with appropriations the meager program we now have.

As the House report indicates, there has been a lot of foot-dragging by the administration on ways to save millions of American lives should an attack occur. What is needed is more concrete action to put effective plans into operation. There can be no excuse for the attitude that nothing can be done.

Roads Are Investments Which Pay Dividends

Good roads are an investment which provides good returns to the taxpayers who pay for them.

That, of course, is the theory upon which Congress based its decision to go ahead with the giant federal-aid highway program. Under this theory, the users themselves will pay for the roads with gasoline taxes.

The theory is confirmed by a recent study of the Georgia Motor Trucking Association of a 11.9-mile stretch of the new four-lane highway in Bartow County. The association concludes, in fact, that this stretch of road makes an annual profit of more than 300 per cent on the funds invested in its building.

Basing its figures on the total number of vehicles—3,364,570—traveling 40,011,466 miles, the association estimates that $512,818 was paid in taxes and registration fees. The profit figure was arrived at by amortizing the cost of the road over a 35-year period.

This line of reasoning is sound. Good roads promote the general economy and increase motor transportation and safety. The main arteries—which have been neglected far too long in Georgia—not only pay for themselves but provide the taxes for continued improvements.

The philosophy of the expanding economy is thus extended to the road system as well as the concept that it takes money to make money.

Mighty USAF-XC99 Falls Victim to Rising Costs

What to do with the largest airplane in the world? This question no longer furrows the brows of Air Force experts. They have decided to sell it. And so the mighty XC99, veteran of 1,486,000 air miles, goes on the auction block, another casualty of the skyrocketing costs era.

Anyone who has watched the XC99 cruise by overhead through the still wild blue yonder cannot help but feel a tinge of regret at the undignified discharge of this ship from the Air Force.

It was only yesterday that crowds of the curious swarmed over her gigantic frame, gazing at her sides, gripping her props, exclaiming at the very enormity of her. That was her hour.

Though not a warrior, the XC99 served her country well in transporting troops and equipment. So when the bids start coming in, let them be slow and snoring, at a pace befitting the pride of the still largest airplane on earth.

Police Should Conduct Continuous Crackdown

The Atlanta Police Dept.'s new "get tough" policy, although belated, already is producing results.

In line with an order issued Friday by Chief Herbert Jenkins, police launched a general roundup of racketeers, hoodlums and vagrants. The 913 cases booked between mid-afternoon Friday and 7:30 a.m. Monday represented approximately twice as many as were made during a similar period the weekend of July 6.

Significantly, approximately 200 of the cases made in the crackdown last weekend came under the heading of vice. Charges included possessing or selling illegal liquor, gambling, operating or occupying dives, prostitution, vagrancy, carrying concealed weapons, violating the dangerous drugs law, etc.

The results of the drive to date are gratifying. At the same time, the large number of arrests is an indication of how badly a general cleanup was needed.

Meanwhile, the new Metropolitan Atlanta area lottery squad has begun making raids and arrests. Particularly encouraging were the promises of support accorded the unit by law enforcement officers from surrounding counties. Lt. W. M. Cox, head of the special squad, said that as far as he knew every county invited—with the exception of Forsyth County—was represented at a meeting here Thursday at which pledges of full cooperation were made.

The heat is now on the undesirable elements. It must be applied from all sides without letup. A spasmodic flurry will not get the job done. The community has the right to expect a continuous, vigorous job of enforcement which will make law violators, the big and the little, pull up stakes or languish behind bars.

Is Klan Now Against Upholding Segregation?

The Klan, which phrase wraps up the many organizations trading on that name, is attempting to terrorize a theater owner in the small, happy town of Gray, Ga., because he is upholding segregation. He, such as he is, is the balcony to Negroes.

But the Klan doesn't like it. So apparently it is seeking to impose terror by suggestion.

The original Ku Klux Klan was disbanded by Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest because its secrecy and its robes made it a refuge for rascals.

It hasn't changed any. During the '20s it became such a haven for rascals it eventually was deserted by almost everyone with any claim to belief in law. It was revived in the '30s and managed here and there to take the law in its hands and beat and kill a few persons.

Today even the "White Citizens' Councils" disavow the Klan and its unsavory reputation. If local law enforcement officials permit it, it might cowardly send 20 men to whip one. But it is a rabble and should be so treated. History shows it to be a cancer in any community. It destroys, finally, those law enforcement officers who are seduced into allowing it to place itself above the law. That it should object to a segregated theater is typical of its arrogance. The good people of Gray will do well to stand firm.

Raleigh Citizens Vote Again for Fluoridation

For the second time since last December citizens of Raleigh, N.C., have approved fluoridation of the city's water supply.

The first referendum, Dec. 11, followed a city council decision, 6 to 1, for fluoridation. The people of Raleigh backed the council by a proportion of 4 for 3 against.

The anti-fluoridationists were not satisfied. They petitioned for a second referendum and got it.

This time the approval was stronger, 5 to 3.

The popular vote in Raleigh is encouraging.

It is good to see an electorate make a decision on the basis of fact and reason, resisting fancy, fiction and fear.

Emory Residents Say High Court Preaches Sociology While Practicing 'Warrenocracy'

Emory—In view of the recent decisions of the Supreme Court, we feel it is time for something to be done about "Warren and his boys." How much longer can we allow the Supreme Court to rule without regard for the Constitution (which it is their duty to interpret) without regard for established legal principles, without regard for legal precedents honored by centuries of practice and, in general, basing their decisions on a sociology textbook rather than the principles by which they should be guided?

We suggest that this "Warrenocracy" be ended before it reduces to chaos our entire judicial system. A law prohibiting men without previous judicial experience from serving on the highest court in the land should be passed immediately. Also we should pass a constitutional amendment limiting the power of the Supreme Court.

We sincerely urge that everyone write their congressman at once and suggest these necessary changes.

Farmers Could Utilize Style To Market Their Surpluses

Now that the soil bank has about gone busted, at least I read in a paper that Congress has decided it should close up after this year and be written off as a failure, and now that Secretary Benson has declared that it is virtually impossible to control farm production, and now that the drought is over in many sections of the country and a bumper crop is in prospect, the problem of a farm surplus once more is coming to the front and the door is now open for new ideas on its solution.

According to Mr. Benson, a "technological explosion" has taken place on the farm due to machinery and the production per farm worker has doubled in the last 15 years, which makes the problem of surpluses worse than ever.

Now while it may be true production per worker has doubled in the last 15 years on the average, I'd like to point out in passing that this is no average farm out here and if my production is any better now than it was 15 years ago, I can't tell it.

Editor's Note: The Rocky Comfort Philosopher recently offered some suggestions for solution of the farm problem in the Warrenton (Ga.) Clipper. It makes more sense to some people than many of the ideas offered by Secretary Benson.

But as for the solution to the farm surplus problem, I hate to see Mr. Benson give up and would like to offer an idea.

Georgia Bar Exams Tagged Unnecessary

Atlanta—Much has been written recently regarding bar examinations and their requirements as to law students under Georgia law. A few years ago there was no such thing as a bar examination. If one desired to enter the practice of law he simply went before a judge of the Superior Court of this state and said judge gave the applicant an oral test of a few important legal questions. That was all!

Permit me to point out further that there is no provision of the United States Constitution or of law which requires a justice of the Supreme Court of the United States to meet any qualifications. He could be a plumber or a carpenter, if the President should

The Religious Man Is a Glory to God

Dr. Allen's column is being written this week by Dr. John R. Brokhoff, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Charlotte, N.C.

"I am not a religious man." This may be your claim. If so, religion to you is just one of those interests of life a man may take or leave. What is religion? An opiate, as the Communists claim? A refuge from the storms of life? A benevolent institution in society?

A fine fellowship of kindred spirits? A relationship with God? Religion is many things to many people.

Suppose you are not at this moment a religious person. You have a right to ask what religion could do for your life. Henry Pitt Van Dusen of Union Theological Seminary in New York City is reported as saying that religion deals with the mystery and mastery of life.

Religion can help you solve the mystery of life. What is life all about?

Every man must find the answer to this question before he can find any significance or meaning to life.

When Mrs. Peter Marshall was a college student she returned from an evening church service and wrote in her diary: "Who am I? Where did I come from? Why am I here? Where am I going? Until I find the answers to these questions I will not have peace of mind."

What does religion say about the mystery of life? It says that a man is made in the image of God. He is more than an animal. He is akin to God. He will not find peace of mind until his soul rests in his Creator. The chief end of man is to glorify God and enjoy Him forever. St. Paul summed it up when he wrote: "For me to live is Christ."

The mystery of life is solved when we know we came from God, are here on earth to serve God and at death we are going to God to serve Him everlastingly.

Religion deals with the mastery of life also. It is a common experience that life often gets too much for us. The bottom of life drops out.

Christian faith enables a man to say with Paul: "I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me."

A man's greatest conquest in life is when he masters himself. This is done when he surrenders self to God.

Religion gives a man victory over temptation. By using the power of God's Word, he rejects Satan's advances.

Man's greatest enemy is death, but here is man's most wonderful victory through the resurrection of Christ. Eternal life is assured for those who now have faith in Christ. When Christ arose, he took the life out of death. The believer shares in Jesus' conquest.

This is what religion can do for you. What are you doing for religion?

WASHINGTON—From extremely diverse sources we are getting a remarkable measure of agreement on the meaning of the big shakeup in the Kremlin. During the past week Secretary Dulles, Premier Nehru and a number of Soviet emigres and escapees have all advanced just about the same judgments on the wholesale reshaping of the Presidium—with Khrushchev and Zhukov on top.

They agree that it is the most significant Soviet event since the downgrading of Stalin.

They agree that it reflects concessions to mass opinion in the Soviet Union which, while final authority over everything still rests in the Kremlin, means that this authority may be exercised less "arbitrarily."

When the American secretary of state, the Prime Minister of India, and the Soviet emigres join in saying just about the same thing—that is quite a consensus.

Dulles sees the recent upheaval in the Soviet ruling group as reflecting the "powerful forces for change which are at work within Russia" and as constituting "an irreversible trend" which may ultimately alter the character of the regime itself.

Nehru sees the removal of Malenkov, Molotov and Kaganovich—the principal remaining Stalinists—from the Presidium as a trend toward "normalcy," a trend which gives Soviet mass opinion consideration, even if it does not give it participation, in Soviet policymaking.

The consensus of a large volume of Soviet emigre opinion also stresses the extent to which the Khrushchev leadership has gone to try to make life more tolerable and, to an extent, more comfortable for the Soviet people. They point out that Khrushchev found it useful "to make his enemies appear as opponents of these popular measures."

The measures to which the Soviet emigres refer are the decentralization of industry, some independence for the satellite Communist regimes, more authority for the Soviet republicans (Russian version of state rights), some check reins on the security police, increased housing, etc.

The net effect of the changes in the leadership confirms Khrushchev's dominant power. There still persists the question to which neither Dulles nor Nehru have addressed themselves. Does the shakeup in the Kremlin mean the Soviet dictatorship is weaker or stronger and, in the sense that its purposes of subverting the world are unchanged, less dangerous or more dangerous?

The end result of the "irreversible trend," to which Dulles refers, may well be to moderate and liberalize the Soviet system. But I cannot escape the view that the ability of the Khrushchev regime to re-shuffle nearly half of the Presidium without liquidating anybody in the Stalin manner strongly indicates that for the present the dictatorship is thereby more resilient, more flexible, more capable of dealing with change without explosion than most people believed.

This is why the Kremlin in light of what has happened is more formidable, not less formidable.

Adams Pulls Strings To Sabotage TVA

WASHINGTON—The most recent case of a "modern" or "Eisenhower" Republican getting cuffed by the White House is that of the able and amiable Sen. John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky. It was he who was persuaded by President Eisenhower to give up a more relaxed assignment as ambassador to India and come home to run for the Senate last November.

He got elected, as did another Republican from Kentucky, now Sen. Thurston Morton.

Cooper is kindly disposed toward the Tennessee Valley Authority, that great conservation project which also reaches into his state with its benefits. That is his crime, at least to Sherman Adams, White House major domo, who has constantly revealed his deep-seated antagonism to such public projects by doing everything possible to restrict their operations, prevent their expansion and stop any new ones.

That comes before "modern Republicanism" with Sherman Adams. So he—and the President—ignored Cooper in choosing a new third member of the TVA Board of Directors. The senator had recommended a Republican House member from Tennessee, Rep. Howard H. Baker, to fill the vacancy created by expiration of the term of Dr. Harry Curtis, former dean of the University of Missouri Engineering School.

Instead, the President nominated Arnold R. Jones of Kansas, now deputy director of the Budget Bureau and, before that, professor of accounting and comptroller of Kansas State College.

It may turn out that the Senate just won't get around to Jones at this session.

Anesthesia Setup Depends On Authority, Dean Says

The dean of the Emory University Medical School said Monday the success of Grady Hospital's new anesthesia program will depend in great part on the backing it receives from the Fulton-DeKalb Hospital Authority.

Dr. Arthur Richardson last week announced the appointment of Dr. William H. Galvin as chief of anesthesiology for the medical school and Grady effective Sept. 1.

Emory will direct the program and the rest, largely a matter of finances, is in the hands of the authority, Richardson indicated.

Galvin's appointment followed the recent disclosure of a 14-month-old survey by Dr. Robert Hingson, of Western Reserve University at Cleveland, revealing that 20-40 anesthesia - related deaths occurred at Grady in 1955.

Based on Hingson's figure of 20 deaths in 1,560 cases, the 1955 anesthesia death rate at Grady was one in every 375 cases. This was four times as high as the rate shown in a Harvard Medical School survey of 10 hospitals.

The Grady death rate was about 3½ times higher than that recorded in a University of Wisconsin study of 63,105 anesthesia cases in which 47 deaths occurred.

The types of hospitals and other differences in the various surveys would tend to make a direct comparison difficult, Richardson pointed out.

DAIRYMAID POURS MILK FOR AGRICULTURE COMMISSIONER

Milk Producers Favor Consumer Body

Georgia milk producers went on record Monday as advocating an organization of consumers and pledged to work with such a group if and when organized.

The resolution was passed unanimously at the sixth annual convention of Georgia Milk Producers, Inc., which held its closing meeting Monday afternoon.

George E. Hatcher, retiring president of the organization, said that the producers would welcome a consumer group.

"The more understanding there is between the producer and consumer, the easier our problems become," the dairyman said. "If there were some group which really represented the consumer, I think a lot of mutual understanding could be reached."

Earlier Monday the producers heard Phil Campbell, state commissioner of agriculture, say that the soil bank plan of the administration carries a serious economic threat to dairymen and beef cattle producers.

Campbell told the group that forcing row-crop farmers to place their land and time into other operations would bring a turn to livestock, overloading the market with production.

In other business, the milk producers elected officers for the coming year. They are J. C. Lee, College Park, president; George E. Hatcher Jr., Macon, vice president; J. C. Johnson, Palmetto, secretary; Charles Reichard, Atlanta, field representative and treasurer.

State Pours 800 Million to U.S.

Georgians poured more than $800 million into federal coffers during the last 12 months, the Internal Revenue Service said Monday.

H. F. Sheppard of the service's collection division said the figure showed an increase of more than $67 million over the previous 12 months.

The tax "take" covered the fiscal year ended June 30. The exact figure was $807,261,997.25. The 1955-56 fiscal year tax gathering in Georgia amounted to $740,198,048.60.

Most of the money was paid as income tax, Sheppard said. So far in calendar 1957, there have been 1,070,909 returns filed in the state. There will probably be some 30,000 more by the year's end, he said.

The Revenue Service has paid back $51,098,599 in tax refunds this year, he said. Almost 600,000 Georgia taxpayers collected the refunds.

East Point To Discuss Sewer Bond

East Point Mayor J. G. Stith and other officials of that city will meet with Fulton County commissioners at 2 p.m. Tuesday to discuss financing of the expansion of Utoy disposal plant.

Stith asked for the meeting to "discuss some problems we have relating to the disposal of our sewer bonds."

County Manager A. E. Fuller said the discussion will center on the inability of East Point thus far to sell its sewer bonds which would have paid for East Point's share of the disposal plant expansion.

The county official explained that under its contract, the county has had to guarantee the shares due from other municipalities who benefit from use of the disposal plant.

Thus, since East Point has not yet been able to sell its sewer bonds, the county has had to pay about $100,000 of East Point's share of the disposal plant cost, Fuller said.

The manager asserted that inability of East Point to sell the bonds thus far resulted from a provision in the city's charter which prevents it from selling bonds at a price less than par.

The commissioners, in their special meeting, also are scheduled to name architects for four new buildings which will be built with funds from the recent

Lawson Tells of Road Needs, Avoids Politics

Horse-and-buggy highways simply won't go with high-compression engines, Roger Lawson, resigned state highway department chief, Monday night told the Buckhead Lions' Club.

Lawson devoted his entire speech to highway problems and did not comment on his political aspirations. He signed his position as highway board chairman in June so that he would be eligible to run for governor in 1958.

Lawson gave a history of the Atlanta expressway system from its inception in 1947 and told the group that the rising costs of construction and acquisition of rights-of-way had tremendously increased the first estimate of the expressway's cost.

He told the group that the University avenue-Richardson street segment of the North-South connector would be opened on Thursday of this week and that the completion of the downtown connector "is now well within the realm of reality."

Lawson will speak Friday to the Patula Electric Membership Corp. at Andrews College in Cuthbert.

DeKalb 6-Month Traffic Toll Put at 11 Dead and 363 Hurt

Eleven persons lost their lives in traffic in DeKalb County in the first six months of 1957, a survey by the Chamber of Commerce shows.

The figure compares with 21 deaths reported in DeKalb County for the year 1956.

The survey also reports 363 cases of injury on county roads through June 30, compared with 676 in 1956, and 1,501 traffic incidents compared with 2,349 during the year 1956.

Seven of the traffic deaths occurred in unincorporated areas of DeKalb County, three in Atlanta within DeKalb, and one in Doraville.

The Chamber reported that if the present rate keeps up during the remaining six months of 1957, deaths will be up from 21 to 22, injuries from 676 to 726, and incidents from 2,349 to 3,002.

Dick Belote

An Atlanta man you'll like to know

Dick Belote, 1271 Avalon Place, has an accountant's head and a humanitarian's heart—a fine combination in his profession.

Dick, Chicago-born, has been an Atlantan since he was 4. He went to local schools, including Boys' High. After 3 years in the Army, he entered the University of Georgia, graduating in 1948 a member of Alpha Kappa Psi business fraternity with a B.B.A. in Accounting.

Dick's training got him an accounting job with a public utility company. His heart switched him to his next job—State Manager, hiring and training salesmen for "The Book of Life" religious publication.

In 1952, Dick found the job for both head and heart—representing Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company.

Church work is important in Dick's life. At Grace Methodist, he has been Sunday School class and Men's Club president. He is now Superintendent of the Youth Division and on the Board of Stewards.

Mrs. Belote (Vivien), a Registered Nurse working with crippled children, teaches in the Sunday School kindergarten.

The Belotes enjoy being a bridge team. Dick is a golfer and hi-fi fan.

Dick, a Life Underwriters Training Course grad and a Pacific Mutual "Top Star," knows insurance.

You'll especially like to know Dick when you find yourself thinking about your future...your family's security...how you'd meet bills if you were ill...how to insure continuation of your business...how to conserve your estate...or when just figuring how much money you'd like to retire on. These are times when he really can help you.

Allergies Get Worse By the Year

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

Allergy is the third most common chronic ailment in adults and it is the leader among children. A pilot study among a small group of under par Chicago school children and their parents showed that allergy was present in one in seven of their parents. The disorder has many ramifications and not every allergic person is disabled. A boy who suffers from an attack of hives every three years is not sick and the same can be said of a woman who gets a rash on her neck from wearing furs. Hay fever and asthma are more incapacitating, especially when they interfere with sleeping, eating and working.

Childhood is the time to nip an allergic condition in the bud. Otherwise there is a lifetime of trouble ahead and there is a good chance the malady will become worse.

The initial attack may be due to sensitivity to a single substance. With each succeeding year, the individual becomes susceptible to additional allergens so that in time there are so many the exact irritants are not known. This fact may be put to practical value by helping the child avoid the most common culprits.

The main troublemakers are animal dander, house dust, feathers, pollen, molds and certain foods. This means the family should not get a dog or include much wheat or corn in the meals. Dust can be minimized by utilizing bedroom filters and plastic coverings on mattresses and omitting rugs and curtains from the decor. Feather pillows are out.

If a mild allergy is neglected, it may become more severe.

Polio Patients Back at Home, A 'Little Weak'

Emory University Hospitals' polio patients are back home again, a "little weak" but getting better all the time.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Geiger of 350 S. Candler Road, Decatur, were both stricken about two weeks ago. The wife had had two Salk vaccine shots, the husband none.

Geiger, 24, is a student at Emory. His wife, Rebecca, 22, who is expecting a baby in August, was first stricken, then two days later her husband was admitted to Emory Hospital with the same disease.

Geiger recuperated faster than his wife, and was released from the hospital last week. Mrs. Geiger came home Monday.

Yesterday's answers EXTOL CRAZY LADLE SHADOW - WALLET

Many youngsters who are handicapped by asthma had untreated eczema or allergic rhinitis during infancy or early childhood. Had these original conditions been treated properly, wheezing might not have developed.

But the situation is not hopeless, even though asthma exists. The outlook is in proportion to the care the youngster receives. There are medicines to control symptoms and make the victim feel more comfortable.

More lasting results are obtained by avoiding the allergens and by taking immunizing injections. The latter are recommended for almost every type of allergy because this is one way to stop the progress of the disease. The earlier the shots are given, the better. Your child deserves this break.

Cancer Given 1-10 Chance Of Killing Heavy Smoker

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP)—A government cancer expert said today the chances are 1 in 10 that a heavy smoker past 45 will die of lung cancer. This is about the same as the smoker's chances of being hit by an automobile, he said.

These odds on the increasing death rate from lung cancer were reported by Dr. John R. Heller, director of the National Cancer Institute, in a copyrighted interview with U.S. News & World Report, a weekly news magazine.

CLOSING ON WOMEN

He defined a heavy smoker as one who uses two or more packs a day. Heller, a non-smoker, said the pack-a-day smoker falls in the "moderate" group.

Heller also said the lung cancer death rate in women "is beginning to come closer to that of men."

His comments on the cigarette-cancer controversy followed a July 12 statement by the U.S. Public Health Service citing evidence that excessive smoking "is one of the causative factors in lung cancer." The conclusion has been challenged by the Tobacco Industry Research Committee.

'LABELS' GAIN BACKERS

Meanwhile, Sen. Wallace F. Bennett (R-Utah) said he had received more than 100 letters and telegrams supporting his bill to require "warning labels" on cigarette packages.

"It may be true that the cause-and-effect relationship between cancer and cigarettes is not yet proved—but nobody denies that certain heart ailments are far more common among smokers," Bennett told the Senate.

He said this "should be sufficient reason for taking the moderate action I have suggested...we cannot ignore this danger in the face of the overwhelming evidence we now have."

Marion B. Folsom, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare was asked today whether he favored Bennett's proposal to have cigarette labels show the "harmful" contents. He said he could not go beyond the Public Health Service statement earlier this month.

Ike Promotes F. C. Scribner In Treasury

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)
WASHINGTON, July 22—President Eisenhower nominated Fred C. Scribner today as undersecretary of the Treasury.

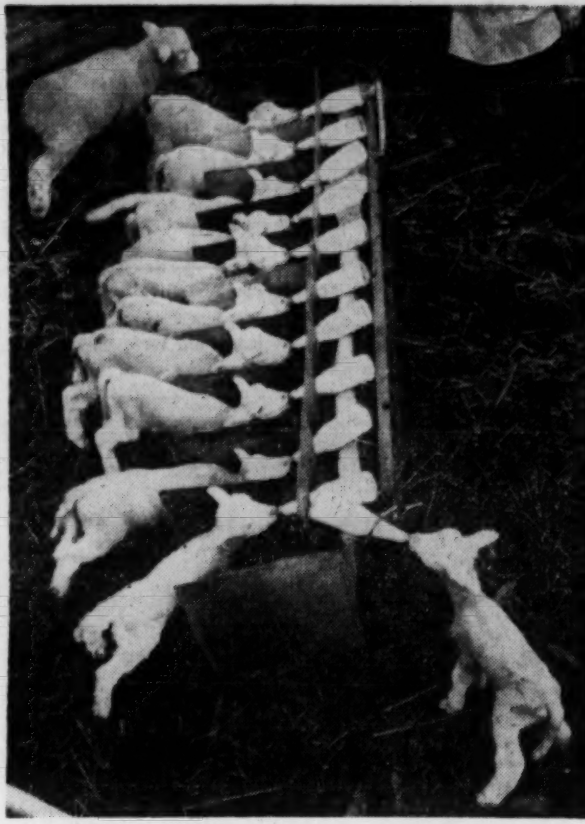

The post has been vacant since early 1956 when C. Chapman Rose resigned. Scribner was appointed general counsel of the Treasury in July, 1955, and in February of this year became one of the four assistant secretaries of the Treasury.

His responsibilities encompassed the Internal Revenue Bureau and Treasury administrative matters. As undersecretary he will have general charge of all operations except debt management and other monetary affairs and international financial affairs. His responsibilities will include customs, narcotics control, Secret Service, Coast Guard and Internal Revenue Bureau.

Before coming to the Treasury Scribner had been in private law practice in Maine. He was Republican national committeeman from Maine from 1948 to 1956. Scribner is 49. He was born at Bath, Maine, was graduated from Dartmouth College and Harvard Law School. His wife is Barbara Merrill Scribner. They have three sons, Fred C. III, Curtis M. and Charles D.

Eisenhower Looks at Disarmament And Remembers the Lesson of 1919

By JAMES RESTON

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, July 22—The administration is afraid that its disarmament negotiations with the Soviets are running ahead of congressional and public understanding and support.

It is beginning to wonder where it would be if, for example, the Russians should accept the American proposals between now and the German elections in September. And this is why Secretary of State Dulles started an educational campaign on a disarmament question in a broadcast tonight.

This also explains why the White House today issued a two-page kit of disarmament history starting with an effort by the Chinese states to produce disarmament back in the sixth century B. C.

1919'S LESSON

The problem is that President Eisenhower has proposed to the Soviets in the London conference certain bold concepts of arms control that Congress is clearly not yet ready to accept. And the London talks have now reached a point where officials here feel that they must guard against what happened to the League of Nations in 1919: Repudiation by the Senate and the American people.

Consequently, Dulles began the education campaign and the White House simultaneously released its background information. Dulles said in his broadcast: "The United States is prepared to accept the inspection of all its territory in North America, in exchange for inspection of the Soviet Union."

However, it is not so long ago that Dulles was warned by a group of senators from the Western states that they would oppose any aerial inspection by the Soviets of the western half of the United States.

EXECUTIVE POWER

In theory, of course, the President might be able to enter into such an agreement under his executive power, but he is committed to present any important disarmament agreement to the Senate in the form of a treaty, and this would require the consent of two-thirds of the senators present.

Moreover, the aerial inspection proposal is not the only controversial part of the President's plan. He is also suggesting an agreement to halt all production of fissionable materials for nuclear weapons, after a specified date; a reduction of existing nuclear weapons stockpiles, and a tentative suspension of nuclear weapons testing—all opposed not only by powerful elements in legislative and scientific circles, but by some officials within the administration itself.

Dulles did not go into the controversial aspects of the U.S. disarmament plan tonight, but he is fully aware of the gap between government planning and public understanding. He has hesitated to deal with this before, lest he create such a demand for disarmament that the administration's defense appropriations would not be approved by the Congress. But since the House and Senate conferees finally agreed today on a $33,759,850,000 defense appropriation, the public education side of the problem is at last getting under way.

One aspect of this whole problem is particularly disturbing to anybody who has studied the control of nuclear weapons. Dulles defined it this way:

ONE ASPECT

"As matters are going," he said, "the time will come when the pettiest and most irresponsible dictator could get hold of (atomic) weapons with which to threaten immense harm... We believe that it is possible to prevent a promiscuous spread of nuclear weapons throughout the world... But unless international procedures are now devised to bring nuclear weapons under control, the problem may soon become totally unmanageable and we must anticipate that immense destructive power will come into the hands of those who might be quite irresponsible."

To prevent this, however, requires close cooperation between the administration and Congress and public which have been paying little attention to the vital complexities of the disarmament question.

For example, the United States

Guard Hunts in Swamp For Lost Farmer, 73

A local National Guard unit was ordered out in Waynesboro Monday afternoon to aid in the search for a 73-year-old man believed lost in snake-infested Briar Creek Swamp near here.

Local guard officials said that approximately 35 men were ordered out around 2:30 Monday to help Sheriff O. J. Clifton in the search for William Robert Oglesby, Burke County farmer.

Oglesby was last seen standing on Heath Bridge near the swamp. Capt. Paul Stone, commander of the local guard unit, described the swamp as "large and infested by snakes. It's the most rugged country in this area," he added. Sheriff Clifton said that Oglesby, who resides at Garfield, Ga., disappeared from his farm last Tuesday. He was believed to have obtained shelter between Sardis and Girard prior to being seen on the bridge at the swamp's edge.

BALD

Men who look better bald than with hair are in the vast minority. Baldness makes almost any man look older than he is. Much baldness is avoidable today because it can be prevented by proper prophylactic treatment.

If your hair is thinning at the temples or on the crown or if dandruff is causing scalp itch and hair loss, consult a skilled Thomas specialist. He knows how to recognize and treat most of the local conditions which cause baldness. His "know-how" is based on the Thomas' 36 years of experience in giving more than seven-million treatments.

Decide to combat baldness today the modern, Thomas way. Just come to a Thomas office and say, "I want to see about my hair." No charge for a complete scalp examination and no appointment is required. See for yourself how Thomas is helping others to avoid baldness and to have better, thicker hair. Consultation in private.

Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) introduced an amendment that would allow the attorney general to move only at the direction of the President.

DANGEROUS DEPUTATION

His proposal was promptly denounced by Russell, and Aiken as being an even more dangerous delegation of powers of the executive branch of government.

"The Bricker amendment makes it worse," Aiken said. "I would not give his power to any President—not even to the next President."

Getting on his feet for the third or fourth time during the day, Russell denounced the entire bill as a surrender of congressional responsibility over legislation to the executive and judicial branches of government.

Team Set Up Here To Handle Navy Mobilizing

A new unit has been organized to handle mobilization of former naval personnel in the Atlanta area in the event of all-out war.

Cmdr. P. B. Narmore, commanding officer, said the new unit, Mobilization Team 6-1, offers "a rare opportunity for former enlisted men in the desired ratings."

Former radiomen, personnel, storekeepers, disbursing clerks or hospitalmen are eligible to fill 12 billets on the new team.

Rated men serving with the unit may not be called to active duty during a creeping war, and if an all-out war occurs, they may not be transferred until after a minimum of 90 days from the time the emergency is proclaimed. In addition, they receive a full day's pay for attending 48 drills a year, receive full pay for a two-weeks' cruise each year, and may advance in rate.

Nixon by name, but strongly hinting at his target, Russell said he certainly would not trust some of the men prominently mentioned as candidates for President in 1960 with such sweeping powers.

'MESS OF TRIPE'

Launching also an attack on recent Supreme Court decisions, Russell said the bill would give the President or attorney general power "as broad as the horizon" to determine what civil rights are under a whole new set of rights created by the Supreme Court and not by Congress.

"This bill," he said, "is a mess of stale tripe . . . being called an altar of roses" under the label civil rights.

Senate majority leader Johnson of Texas, anxious to dispose of the part three controversy, sought a unanimous consent agreement for a vote on that issue late tomorrow. Minority leader Knowland (Calif) refused to agree.

However, unless a Northern liberal filibuster gets under way, the Senate likely will vote on part three tomorrow and then proceed to the jury trial issue in part four of the bill.

MORE GOP AID

The Dixie forces got powerful support in their fight against part three today from two more Republican senators—Saltonstall (Mass.) and Smith (N.J.).

Saltonstall said he favors a civil rights bill to protect the voting rights of all citizens. But he said that empowering a federal official to move into states to enforce other laws would "do violence to the fundamental American concept of government close to the people."

"In the end," Saltonstall said,

East Point Calls Cleanup Week

East Point Mayor John G. Stith has issued an appeal to all citizens urging a thorough cleanup of their property and vacant lots.

The mayor has proclaimed Aug. 3-10 as "Clean-Up, Paint-Up Week" in preparation for the city's 70th birthday celebration on Aug. 10.

"individual and civil rights are not promoted but rather demoted" by such a broad grant of power as title three provides.

Sen. Smith said he, too, will vote for the Anderson-Aiken amendment because he wants to get a right-to-vote bill passed.

If part three is not stricken from the bill, Smith said, no bill at all might be passed in the face of a threatened Southern filibuster.

He declared he did not think the Southerners would wage a last-ditch fight against merely a voting rights bill and that it would be wrong to give the attorney general power now in part three to force school integration on the South.

The Southerners also threw another blow at the civil rights advocates when Sen. McClellan (D-Ark), proposed an amendment that would give the attorney general the power to seek injunctions against persons violating the Smith Act, which forbids conspiracies to overthrow the government of the United States.

McClellan said that anyone who protested that his amendment would violate the constitutional rights of Communists must be forced to concede that the bill would do the same for Southerners.

RUSSELL FOR 2-PARTY

In a radio broadcast Monday night, Sen. Russell said he had concluded the South had been mistaken "to give its loyalty only to the Democratic party" since the Civil War.

"I believe now it would have been better if we had had a two-party system," he said on Reporters' Roundup—MBS.

"The Northern Democrats take us for granted and discount us, and the Republicans write it off as an accident if a Southern state votes for them."

"So both think they can do anything to us in order to woo the votes of these minorities in the North."

U.S. Court Delays Miami Bus Suit

MIAMI, July 22 (UP)—Federal Judge Emmet C. Choate today postponed until Wednesday a suit by four Negro women seeking to declare the state and city's bus segregation laws unconstitutional. The judge blamed the delay on a busy court calendar.

But the judge's decision in the case was expected to be in favor of the Negroes' petition. He said in January he would have no hesitancy about striking down the segregation laws because they have already been declared unconstitutional.

LANA SHEDS 4TH—
SANTA MONICA, Calif., July 22—Actress Lana Turner poses in courtroom here today where she won divorce from her fourth husband—Alexander C. (Lex) Barker—after testifying he had an "uncontrollable temper which he showed many times." The 37-year-old actress wed Barker, 38, Dec. 24, 1953.

Bull Halts Train For 20 Minutes

TOULOUSE, France, July 22 (AP)—A belligerent bull lowered his horns, anchored his hoofs between the rails and halted a train for 20 minutes. Since none of the passengers or crew cared much for bull fighting, the train might have been there yet. But a pack of dogs came up and chased the bull away.

and Sen. Talmadge's Vandiver is an unannounced candidate for governor next year.

Griffin volunteered his statement regarding the lieutenant governor near the close of his news conference. But he declined to go further into the Tococa dedication hassle.

Vandiver, meanwhile, lashed out at the civil rights bill now under debate in the Senate and the Supreme Court's anti-segregation decision in a speech to the Atlanta Rotary Club.

"Despite rumors going about the state to the contrary, as long as I am in public office or as a private in the rear ranks, I will resist to the limit of my ability and strength all efforts to carry out the terms of the civil rights bill, if it becomes law, and all efforts to implement the Supreme Court's decision on segregation in the schools," he said.

In a separate development Monday, Revenue Commissioner T. V. Williams released a copy of a letter of dismissal he had written July 12 to Ben F. Wilbanks of Chatsworth, a former alcohol enforcement agent.

Wilbanks said Saturday that as "far as I know," he was fired for predicting that Lt. Gov. Ernest Vandiver would carry his county—Murray—for governor next year.

Williams released his letter to Wilbanks to back up his denial that politics was involved in the dismissal.

The letter stated: "Recent work carried on by undercover agents of this department in cooperation with federal agents in which a clear indication was that the territory to which you are assigned was not being properly worked is a serious reflection on the officers who are supposed to have been covering the territory."

"In order to promote efficiency in the enforcement unit of the Alcohol Control Unit and to reduce personnel, your services are being terminated, effective July 15, 1957."

Matrimonial bonds are like that, too. They ain't worth much unless the interest is kept up.

Florida Road Toll 576

TALLAHASSEE, July 22 (AP)—Florida's traffic death toll thus far this year climbed to 576 today with six weekend fatalities, a delayed report on another and the death of a 6-year-old boy near Winter Haven.

agent as Boris Bell, of the Bell Insurance Agency in Houston.

Morton Henig, a committee staff investigator testified that the union pays Jacobs company $139 a month to lease the car the UTW assigns to Jacobs. Henig said the price is higher because "it's a little better car."

Henig said companies in the Washington area charge from $85 to $95 a month for leasing cars. He said they contend the price should be the same in the Atlanta area.

Jacobs promised to take another look at his auto rental arrangement with the union. He said that if he concludes that "any of our members can be suspicious that by this arrangement we are doing something wrong, I would quickly put an end to it, even if it meant a financial loss."

Jacobs also testified that at various times he has had a sister-in-law and a son on the payroll of his law office, to which he said the union contributed $600 a month for staff and other expenses. Counsel Kennedy insisted all of Jacobs' three sons are members of his law firm and share in the retainer the union pays to it.

Sen. Mundt (R-SD) said that as he figures it, Jacobs gets $15,765 a year in "direct" payments from the union, plus the profits to his auto leasing enterprise and "benefits" Mundt said also accrued to the insurance agent brother-in-law, the sister-in-law and at least one son working in the law office on union tasks.

TEA FOR THREE—Mary King Battey, Rosalind Nadel and Janet Clark (left to right) enjoy a cup of tea during rehearsal for "Where's Charley?" opening at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Theater Under the Stars production at Chastain Amphitheater in North Fulton Park. Miss Nadel plays the role of "Donna Lusita." She is a mezzo-soprano.

The bidding:
West 1 spade
North 2 hearts
East 3 hearts
South 3 hearts

Opening lead: King of diamonds.
South thought he was making the correct percentage play in his choice of discards today. However, he overlooked a selection which would have allowed for a less probable adverse holding as well as the more normal distribution.

South became declarer at a contract of four hearts on a normal bidding sequence. "Observe that over his partner's take-out double, he jumped in hearts to show that he had more than a forced response."

West opened the king of diamonds and on the play of the deuce by partner shifted to the jack of clubs. Declarer won with the king and drew three rounds of trumps.

He then drove out the ace of diamonds and West played the waiting game by returning a diamond on which South chose to discard the queen of spades, recognizing from the bidding that West held the king.

He hoped then that the clubs would break 3-2 (the most probable distribution) and that he would therefore give up one trick.

'Bus Stop' Toned Down For Atlanta

Theatergoers will see a censored version of "Bus Stop" when that play opens in the Arena Playhouse Tuesday night.

Neil Hamilton, veteran star of the movies, TV and stage, and headline in this production of the Broadway hit, said he requested that certain lines of dialogue be stricken from the script. Director Stanley Tackey agreed.

Hamilton, who describes himself as a very religious man and a member of the Catholic faith, said he "would not tolerate the misuse of God's name just to get a laugh."

The actor said he "went quietly to the director" and he "very graciously" accepted his suggestion to cut out some of the lines. "Bandying about the name of God is offensive not only to me, but to almost everyone," Hamilton said.

Other phases of the play, which flirt with a moral question, will remain in the play, which tells about an untamed cowboy and a barroom singer who get together on the eve of a big rodeo.

The actor, who says he was busted financially in the early 1940's after having made a fortune in movies, said he began a re-evaluation of his life some 13 years ago when he was inspired by the friendship of an Italian priest.

Hamilton, one of the pioneers in television, said Grace Kelly was one of his "discoveries." Miss Kelly, now the Princess of Monaco, once appeared on Hamilton's TV program, on which the actor screen tested talent for the theater.

"Bus Stop" will be presented at 8:30 p.m. at the Arena Playhouse.

TV Film To Be Made at Andersonville

A newly formed New York publishing firm is sending a television film crew to Sumter County to shoot movies for the promotion of a new book about the Andersonville Civil War stockade which will be brought out in November.

"We'll be in Sumter County Tuesday and Wednesday to shoot the movies," Ivan Obolensky, of McDowell, Obolensky, Inc., said in Atlanta Monday.

The book which the movies are designed to promote is "This Was Andersonville," authored by John McElroy, a former journalist who was captured in 1863 and spent 13 months in the stockade.

Obolensky said the book will include an introduction by Roy Meredith which will present documentary statements by Jefferson Davis, Robert E. Lee, Abraham Lincoln and Ulysses Grant regarding the Sumter County prison.

"This TV-filming is an entirely new promotion idea," Obolensky declared, "and we hope other publishers will follow suit in an effort to help solve book-sale promotion difficulties."

"We plan to make a three-minute short subject to offer to various department stores for television promotion programs," Obolensky said.

"We also will shoot sufficient footage for a 28-minute film suitable for a half-hour TV program and for a movie documentary short," he said.

Jury Chief Vows Push On Lottery

The July-August term Fulton Grand Jury situation is "still interested in any situation that would concern lottery or bribery," its foreman said Monday.

The jury, which was advised by a judge that lottery and bribery investigations should be brought to a conclusion, will consider only routine business at its regular session Tuesday, Foreman Frank C. Bowen said.

A committee of the jury met Monday but was "not studying lottery," Bowen said in answer to a reporter's questions.

The foreman added, however, that the jury is "going to continue to do what it can do to get to the bottom" of lottery and any bribery or police protection.

The present jury was told by Judge Virlyn B. Moore at its inception that it should consider bringing to a conclusion the lottery-bribery probes begun by two previous juries.

It was understood that Sol. Gen. Paul Webb's office is still continuing its own bribery investigation, although it has been slowed by the absence in recent weeks of key investigators who have been on military leave.

Ex-FBI Man Leads Probe Of Police

A south Georgia practicing attorney is conducting the special Atlanta aldermanic board's probe of criticism of the city police department.

Ald. Milton G. Farris Monday announced W. E. Taylor of Cuthbert was hired by his three-man aldermanic committee to handle the investigative side of the probe about two weeks ago. Atlanta attorney Hugh M. Dorsey Jr., was hired to handle the legal end.

Taylor's name was kept confidential during the early stages of the investigation, Farris said, to "allow him free freedom in gathering information." Farris said this stage is now passed.

The Randolph County attorney was selected because he has no connection with the Atlanta Police Department, and for his qualifications that include four years with the FBI, Farris said.

"That was our hardest job, finding a man who is not connected with the local police department and who can conduct a two or three month investigation," Farris said.

Governor Contest Expected to Boost '58 Voting Lists

Public interest in the already-explosive 1958 governor's race will prompt higher vote registration in Georgia, according to a Metropolitan Voting Council official.

Lack of candidates and issues before deadline for registration "has been one of the hardships to overcome in registration interest in the past," says DeKalb County division chairman Charles D. McKinney in an address prepared for delivery Thursday.

McKinney said he will make the prediction at a meeting of the Metropolitan Voting Council to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the director's room of the DeKalb County Chamber of Commerce in the Professional Building, Decatur. The council's two-fold purpose of increasing both registration and voting will be the main topic of discussion at the meeting.

Detailed plans for district, precinct, block, club and business organization for DeKalb County will also be explained.

Girl on Horse Pursued Here by Unclothed Man

A young girl was chased by a nude man Monday as she was horseback riding on a bridle path near Emory University, police said.

The incident occurred Monday morning when the man leaped from the bushes as the girl was riding by, DeKalb County Police Capt. Frank Roberts said. Roberts said it was his understanding that the man tried to pull the girl from the horse, but he had not gathered full details as of Monday night.

Police are still looking for the man, described as six feet tall and dark haired.

Go 500 Miles West—You Can't Miss It

WATERLOO, Ont., July 22 (AP)—A traveling salesman stopped Constable Matthew Peppert and asked the way to a customer's firm on Taylor Street.

Peppert said there was no Taylor Street and asked for a look at the salesman's order book. The Taylor Street salesman was looking for was in Waterloo, Que., 500 miles from Waterloo, Ont.

New President Noah Langdale Jr. Gets Acquainted at Georgia State

Noah Langdale Jr., the new president of Georgia State College of Business Administration, cruised into Atlanta from Valdosta Monday for a two-day "get-acquainted" visit with faculty and students of the institution.

Langdale said Monday night he expects to assume his official duties at Georgia State early next week. "I'm trying to wind up my personal affairs in Valdosta this week," he said. "and of course we've still got the housing problem to meet in Atlanta."

The 37-year-old educator was an assistant professor of social science at Valdosta State College when he was named by the State Board of Regents on July 10 to succeed the retiring Dr. George M. Sparks at Georgia State.

DeKalb To Hear U.S. 78 Rezoning

DeKalb County Commissioners will hold an open hearing Tuesday to consider a recommendation by the Zoning Board that part of U.S. Highway 78 be rezoned for business.

The meeting is scheduled for 2 p.m. The controversial rezoning issue concerns a strip along the Stone Mountain highway about one mile east of Avondale.

Decatur Spends $375,619 for 6 Mos.

Decatur spent $375,619 of a budgeted $844,424 for 1957 during the first six months of the current year, according to the city's mid-year report.

The report, to be presented to the City Commission July 30, covers the period January 1 through June 30, 1957. Breakdown shows the following expenditures: legislative, $1,236 of $4,450; administrative, $23,511 of $44,909; finance, $13,298 of $21,031; legal matters, $2,551 of $4,874; tax assessors, $3,711 of $4,975; street lighting, $8,101 of $17,750, and public property, $3,649 of $5,985 budgeted.

Income during the period was $451,449 compared with an anticipated $844,424 for the year. This is broken down as follows: general government, $256,306 of $626,273; safety and welfare, $46,685 of $66,200; public service (street tax) $76 of $23,500; streets, sewers and sidewalks, $2,523 of $4,900; recreation dept., $11,912 of $15,500 and nonbudgetary accounts, $12,178.

The report also shows Decatur collected $11,183 in interest from investments of various surplus funds.

New Allstate package policy saves homeowners 10% to 28%

Whether you own or rent... this is important news for you.
One policy does work of four. Insures against fire, theft, family liability losses, and dozens of other hazards that could threaten your family, your possessions and your security.

Now you can buy one big package of protection that will guard your family, living quarters and possessions from many different hazards. The new Allstate Homeowners Policy protects you against misfortunes that could ruin you financially.

It covers fire... theft... vandalism... windstorm... explosion... smoke... lawsuits and legal fees for home accidents... medical payments for visitors and guests... even teen-age "pranks." Practically every major peril is covered.

HERE, IN A NUTSHELL, ARE SOME OF THE ADVANTAGES OF THE ALLSTATE HOMEOWNERS POLICY

Everything in one policy... one low premium... one renewal date... one company to serve you and look after your interests...

Convenient one-year premium payable on easy payment plan. No need to lay out heavy cash for three- and five-year premiums. Allstate's Homeowners Policy costs 10% less than Homeowners policies of most other companies, and up to 28% less than the same protection purchased in separate policies from most other companies.

The premium for your Allstate Homeowners Policy can be credited for the unexpired term of your present policies, or you may prefer to arrange their cancellation and obtain a refund.

DO YOUR PRESENT POLICIES PROTECT YOU THIS WELL?

You cash a check for $75.00. Within a few blocks of the bank you are held up, and the thief escapes in traffic. This new Allstate policy reimburses you in full for such a loss of money under $100!

Your house or apartment has been made uninhabitable by fire. While necessary repairs are underway, your living expenses are increased by having to live in a hotel, eating in restaurants, etc. This new Allstate policy pays extra expenses like these!

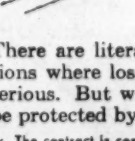

Your home is burglarized while you are at the movies. A new portable television set and an expensive, new camera are stolen. This new Allstate policy pays for loss of such articles!

A neighbor's youngster trips on a rake you left lying in your yard and injures himself. You are sued. This new Allstate policy protects you against the medical expenses and lawsuit costs!

Vandals damage your home while you're away for the weekend. This new Allstate policy pays for such willful and malicious damage!

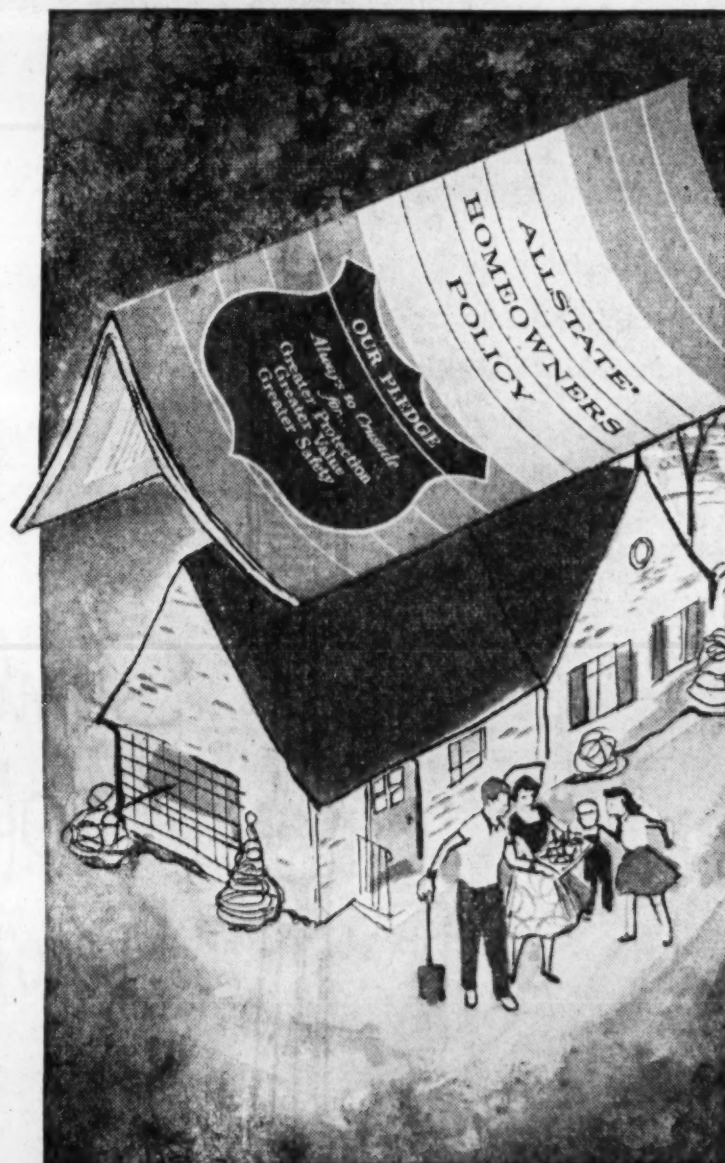

There are literally dozens and dozens of situations where losses such as those above could be serious. But why take chances when you could be protected by an Allstate Homeowners Policy?

This is only a brief description of the policy. The contract is contained only in the policy.

YOU'RE IN GOOD HANDS WITH ALLSTATE

Allstate was founded and is wholly owned by Sears. Allstate insurance reflects the same low-cost value and dependable service that has made Sears so famous. Allstate's Homeowners Policy won't prevent the accidents... but it can prevent them from ruining your future!

Fiscal View Of Williams Optimistic

State Revenue Commissioner T. V. Williams declared Monday that there is "no cause for alarm" about the state government's financial outlook.

He said in a statement that there should be no need for additional taxes during the remaining 18 months of Gov. Griffin's administration or the following four years provided the next governor is a good "business administrator and not a weakling."

SEES INTAKE LEVEL

"The state of Georgia is in an excellent financial condition with over $35 million dollars surplus," Williams said. "There will continue to be no place for extravagance in state spending in order to maintain this sound financial position for our state."

Williams has stated that revenue collections during the current fiscal year are not likely to exceed last year's total of about $315,500,000.

However, there are strong indications that spending during this fiscal year will top the $310 million expenditures for the fiscal year that ended June 30.

8 MILLION FOR ROADS

State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr. said $310,171,577 has already been budgeted for the current fiscal year. He said this does not include additional money Griffin is expected to transfer to the Highway Department.

The governor has indicated that about $8,000,000 additional will go for highway construction.

At his news conference Monday, Griffin indicated it is a little early to start speculating about tax and spending totals for the new fiscal year which is not yet a month old. But he did express concern about a drop in sales tax collections.

"The minute we are sure that we are losing revenue from the sales tax and other consumer taxes and that we would be operating in the red, we would have to do something," Griffin said.

Duckworth Held Loyalty Quiz Proper

In Monday's Constitution, Chief Justice W. H. Duckworth of the State Supreme Court was quoted as having said the loyalty questionnaire for state employees was a "foolish, needless thing."

When the questionnaire was under widespread criticism in 1954, Justice Duckworth made that statement about the length of the questionnaire. At that time he also issued this clarifying statement on the questionnaire:

"I have voluntarily executed the questionnaire and I think the entire personnel of the Supreme Court will voluntarily do likewise."

"To me the loyalty questionnaire seems unnecessary. But that is a matter for decision by the governor and Legislature and, having made it, they are entitled to the cooperation of all state employees in their effort to fight communism."

"In signing the questionnaire, I surrendered no right, sacrificed no freedom, and was required to do nothing that I regarded as improper."

"Working for the state is a privilege and not a right; hence it may properly be conditioned on one's meeting any requirements that the state makes."

"The employee is free to reject the requirement and forego the privilege."

"It does not seem to me that any employee could properly claim the right to refuse to reveal the name of any person whomsoever that such employee knows to be a Communist dedicated to the violent overthrow of the very government for which he works."

A Twirler's Summer Is Spent Twirling

By MARJORY RUTHERFORD

"A PESSIMIST," defines Peachtree Cynic, "is a guy who sizes himself up and gets sore about it."

Jean Bennett

YOUNG MOTHER crossing Five Points at noon carrying sleeping baby in her arms, her own sun-glasses propped across infant's face to shield him from glaring sunlight.

HOW DOES an aspiring young baton-twirler spend her summer? Why, studying twirling, of course.

Jean A. Bennett, 16-year-old daughter of Verne M. Bennett, 546 Hillside Dr., NW, is one of 200 teen-agers currently attending the University of Miami's summer band camp in Coral Gables, Fla. The pretty Atlanta is a senior at Northside High School. Another Atlantan enrolled in the Florida study camp is Janice V. Smith, 16, of 160 The Prado, NE. Janice is learning how to improve her clarinet playing. The young clarinetist is a junior at Henry Grady High, and her dad, Gerald Y. Smith, is an assistant superintendent of city schools here.

A RETIRED MARINE colonel and a 10-year-old Hapeville girl were first persons to answer Atlanta Accent's last little language quiz.

If you recall, A. O. Brewton had asked for an example showing when "geese" is NOT the plural of "goose."

Col. Peter J. Negri of 2816 Ridgeway Dr., NW, and Nancy Jane Ford of 3450 Orchard St., Hapeville, pointed out that "goose" can mean not only a fowl but also a tailor's smoothing iron. In the latter case, "gooses" is the correct plural.

Colonel Negri also cited "mongooses—a mongoose plus one or more mongooses."

Similar answers came in the first mail from J. S. Burbank, 114 Heatherdown Rd., Decatur; Lindsey Few, Apalachee; Eileen Page, 15 Forsyth St., NW; Bobby Upchurch, Carrollton; Inez Parker, 1317 William Oliver Building, and 15-year-old Dickie Bullard and his mother, Mrs. B. L. Bullard, both of 3442 Kingsboro Rd., NE. H. C. Cooling, 54 Ellis St., NE, noted that "little geese are goslings."

"DON'T EXPECT YOUR WIFE to have brains," declares Snapshots, "if you didn't use any when you picked her out."

Service

One of Atlanta's most historic landmarks . . . a gas lamp bearing shell marks of The War Between the States, is still in its original location at Whitehall and Alabama Streets . . . not far from our main office down at the busy corners known as Five Points. • You may remember that this lamp was relighted during "Gone With the Wind" festivities back in 1939. It was then named "The Eternal Flame of the Confederacy" and was established as a perpetual memorial to Atlanta's past and as an ever-glowing beacon for the future. • We at The Bank of Georgia like to feel that this lamp also is a symbol of our service . . . the warmth, friendship, and safety of the strength of the past and the brightness of the future. We, long ago, made the lamp a part of our signature . . . and a symbol of our bank: a modern bank with long and honorable tradition, looking ahead to continued service to Atlanta. • You'll find that we, at The Bank of Georgia, honor each account, no matter what size—industrial, business, or personal—with the same warmth, friendship, and safety. Come in soon and see.

Glide to College In Velvet With A Party Mood

By RAYMONDE ALEXANDER

If a girl is college bound this fall, she has more on her mind now than just a carefree summer.

Tobe Says

New Swim Suit Brightens Wardrobe

Right now a lot of us feel we need something new to freshen up our summer wardrobe.

Particularly a new swim suit, because these get the hardest wear of any of our summer clothes. The swim suit makers realize this themselves and have brought out new models for this mid-summer season.

Smartest and most luxurious, too, are those in silk—silk lastex with slightly nubby texture that resembles the Italian raw silks. These suits are new in shape, too, so somewhat like the new dresses.

Whitehead, Green Vows Solemnized

The Druid Hills Presbyterian Church formed the setting for the marriage last evening of Miss Ann Cassels Whitehead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard K. Whitehead, to Lt. W. Edwin Green Jr.

Dr. Thomas A. Fry Jr. was the officiant. After the service Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead were hosts at a reception in the church parlor.

Mr. Whitehead gave his daughter in marriage. She chose for her wedding a gown of Chantilly lace posed over white taffeta and fashioned with cathedral train. Her illusion veil was attached to a matching lace tiara, and she carried a bouquet of alba lilies. She also carried a real lace handkerchief which the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. W. Edwin Green Sr., carried at her wedding.

Mrs. Tom Lovelace was matron of honor for the bride, and her bridesmaids were Mrs. J. Ed Dickey Jr., Mrs. William McLean, Misses Ann Fattig, Karen Buhler and Nata Cassels.

The bride's young sister, Lynda Whitehead, was junior bridesmaid, and Dale Holmes served as ring bearer.

Kenneth Green was his brother's best man. Usher-grooms-men included J. Ed Dickey Jr., Thomas and George Bue-tell, Luke Parks Jr., Richard and Harry Whitehead.

Lt. Green and his bride left for a Florida honeymoon. Upon their return they will move into a home at 585 Clifton Way, which was a gift from the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead.

She is thinking about what to pack in that empty suitcase. And, if she is smart enough to be ready for a higher education, she is smart enough to know that she should stretch her purchasing over more than one of dad's pay-days.

She won't wait until a week or so before departing to lay in the clothes she definitely plans to include in her wardrobe.

SUNDAY OR PARTY

In this category falls the velvet fashion. She may want it in a Sunday dress or a party version—it's up to her individual preference—but she will want it one way or another.

There is just something about the elegance and the appropriateness of velvet that makes it fit into the college way of life.

Two of the prettiest in a party mood are creations by designers noted for fashions with a young sophisticated appeal.

FRATERNITY DANCES

Suzi Perette chooses rayon velvet for a street-length dress that will be perfect for those fraternity dances.

The skirt stands out over two petticoats and is puffed-lined for a firm but gentle body. The bodice hangs by shoulder straps and has a loose bosom panel that effects a daring look but is closed with a fit underneath.

The belt is set in at the side seams and ties in a bow in the front. The back is bare but not extremely low.

Ann Fogarty works with cotton velvet to fashion the perfect dress for rush parties in early fall and for dinner dancing all through winter.

FITTED BODICE

It, too, has a close-hanging full skirt made in a flare. The fitted bodice continues right on into little shoulder-cap sleeves that are accented with ready-tied bows.

Both come in beautiful shades of ruby, royal and black. Pack in either one for a smooth entrance into fall's social whirl.

For shopping information on the fashions mentioned, call JA. 2-5050, Ext. 394, or send a self-addressed post card, stating date of story, to the Women's Department, The Atlanta Constitution.

Capital City BPW Plans Skit Aug. 1

A skit on parliamentary procedure will highlight the meeting of the Capital City Business and Professional Women's Club on Thursday, Aug. 1.

The meeting will begin with a dinner at 6:30 p.m. at the Cox Carlton Hotel. The program will be presented by Mrs. Lizabelle Marlow.

Recording 'Stars' Teach the Blind

By MARY HUTCHERSON

Constitution State News Service

ATHENS, July 22—These are the days when recording artists are popping up all over the state. But not all of these are belting out sad songs of fractured teen-age love affairs.

Around Athens there are a score or more anonymous recording artists—housewives, university faculty, retired teachers—who in quiet even voices set down on small green discs the words from a wide variety of college textbooks for a limited but appreciative audience—blind college and vocational students.

This volunteer program of transforming the written word into the spoken word is being carried out at the Athens unit of Recording for the Blind, Inc., a nationwide, nonprofit organization that records educational materials for college-level blind students and circulates these books free of charge.

Although the Library of Congress has Braille books and the Talking Books, its collections generally don't include educational texts. Recording for the Blind attempts to fill this gap.

The Athens unit has so far turned out a variety of books that range from world literature to business law and which have been used by such students as an Atlanta grocer and an elderly woman in Maine as well as by students at the university.

Mrs. Paul Hodgson, a former radio announcer who is chairman of the unit, explained that the Athens unit is unusual in that its records are used in the correspondence courses offered by the university's extension service and are usually recorded "on request" from the home study students.

SPECIALISTS

Volunteer readers, who after being voice-tested and taught to use the machines, work an hour or more each week. When possible, books are assigned to specialists in the field covered by the book. Hence, a retired teacher of business law recorded a book on business law. One of the university English teachers helped record the sophomore English text.

Recording a book is no small matter, remarked Mrs. Hodgson. A survey text of English literature, just completed on the older discs, amounts to 300 records. Even with the longer-playing records the average book involves 50 to 60 records.

"CUDDLING UP"

Some books are done at the request of the national organization. One such book was used by a Wisconsin student who later wrote the Athens unit about how much he enjoyed "cuddling up with a warm Southern voice on a cold Wisconsin night."

Many books are recorded for and used in university home study courses that give college credit. Miss Elizabeth Powell, home study supervisor and local secretary for Recording for the Blind, said that one Atlanta man has taken eight courses and completed five with average or above average grades. Exam questions are recorded and mailed out with a minister or teacher as proctor, the blind students type out the answers and mail them back.

When a student finishes a book, he returns it to Recording for the Blind's record library from whence it may soon be dispatched again. And though the library is growing, demand always exceeds supply. Mrs. Hodgson said.

More Visitors Than Readers?

Has it occurred to anybody else that the world is rapidly becoming populated with writers—so rapidly that practically any day now a census may show that we have more writers than readers?

Behold the writers' conference as a sign of the times!

They abound all over the United States and on the ships at sea. (At least there's a cruise to the Bahamas that specializes in lectures and courses for would-be writers.) And now there's one at the University of Georgia, beginning next Sunday and lasting for a week.

It's called the Southern Writers' Workshop and although it's brand new this year, people have already written in from Tennessee and North Carolina, as well as all parts of Georgia, to sign up. The lecturers include the Georgia literary lights, which are almost as numerous as the stars in the sky, such illustrious figures as Annie Laurie Williams, who was Margaret Mitchell's agent, and some other New York literary agents and publishers.

Designed to take the place of a vacation for writing-minded people who nevertheless must keep hours and work for a salary the rest of the year, this conference attempts to combine practical instruction, what the churches call "fellowship" and pure fun in a one-week program. All of this at a cost of $50, not counting your room and meals in the new air-conditioned Georgia Center at Athens. (Room rates are $4 and $6 a day, depending upon whether you have a private one or share one.)

In years past there used to be a feeling that writing was a solitary occupation and that people who ran around to meetings and conferences were talking, rather than writing authors. I don't know how that theory was exploded but it certainly seems to have gone up in smoke. The out-writingest, out-readingest people in the world are to be found at these conferences.

A few years ago I went to such a conference at Middlebury College in Vermont and I was astonished at the numbers of full-time, professional writers who came. Maybe they like to draw nigh to each other for comfort, these people who toll alone so much of the time. They like to hear how other writers write, bounce their ideas around and see if they have any resilience in them and pick up a spark from their fellow toilers if they can.

People who sign up for the Southern Writers' Workshop are entitled to send ahead one manuscript for criticism and advice. Only the brave in heart will do this. The cold, clinical eye is not the one you really wish to see turned on your prose. What you want, what all of us want, is somebody who will handle our brainchildren tenderly, who will see in the story what we saw in it, who will admire the writing for what we meant it to be instead of what it is. In a way the workshop that offers professional advice and criticism separates the men from the boys. If you can take the criticism, better still, if you can take it and use it, you will benefit by the workshop.

Maybe you can't. (I'm not sure I can. I still shiver at the merciless treatment a short story of mine received at the Middlebury conference.) But in any case the session should be pleasant. All that talk of writing is fun for readers and inevitably sends you into a frenzy of reading. And besides that, there will be swimming and picnicking and a great many parties for pure rest and relaxation.

Annie Lou Hardy Birney Robert Plans 2nd World Cruise

Though Birney Robert is only a sophomore at Goucher, she is already becoming something of a globe-trotter. She leaves July 31 with her father, L. W. Robert Jr., on a business trip that will take her for the second time completely around the world. They will visit Tokyo, Darwin, Australia, and Cape Town, South Africa, before going on to London where they will meet Mrs. Robert who will be there for a visit to her godmother, Lady Evelyn Macleay.

In Africa, Miss Robert and her father plan to visit Victoria Falls, the great Kruger National Games Reserves, and at Nairobi they will spend the night at the Treetops Hotel, located on the edge of Mt. Kenya in the heart of the Mau Mau country.

The Roberts' itinerary also includes a stop at Berlin and a visit to Denmark and Sweden before landing in London. Birney, who has spent the past month at Sea Island and in Atlanta, will return with her mother on the Ile de France on Oct. 1 in time to resume her studies at Goucher.

Price Gilbert Jr. will accompany Mr. Robert and Miss Robert, and except for side trips to Rangoon and Calcutta, will be with them all the way. He and Mr. Robert will fly home from London, arriving late in September.

MISS JANE GRANT is looking forward to a visit from her Wellesley classmate, Miss Kate Burke of Summit, N.J., who is expected to arrive on Friday. The two girls were graduated from Wellesley in June.

"Kate was an outstanding student," enthused Jane. "She was freshman class president at Wellesley, as well as being rated one of the prettiest girls on the campus."

WHEN THE ROBERT HOLDERS rented a beach cottage at Sea Island for the month of July, they issued invitations for a week's house party to a group of their close friends. Their guests, who leave tomorrow, include Mr. and Mrs. William K. Grant, Dr. and Mrs. Edward S. Wright, Dr. and Mrs. Mason Lowance, and Mrs. Cliff Sauls.

Do they plan to swim, fish or play bridge? "Oh, no," laughed Mrs. Grant. "We haven't energy for any of those things. All we plan to do is just sit and relax."

DR. AND MRS. RALPH HEFNER are entertaining members of their family this week at their summer home at Blue Ridge—the first such reunion in 10 years.

Their guests include Mrs. Hefner's mother, Mrs. A. P. Williamson of Atlanta; her sister, Mrs. Roscoe Crozier and Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Crozier Jr. of Richmond, and her brother, Robert White Williamson, Mrs. Williamson, and their children, Martha, Bob and Harriett of Phoenix, Ariz.

MRS. HUGH RICKENBAKER JR. and her three young sons spend practically all the daylight hours on the beach every day while visiting her mother, Mrs. J. A. Blanton at St. Simons for two weeks.

MRS. ALICE NELSON of Cleveland, Ohio, arrived yesterday for a visit of several days to Mrs. Franklin Mitchell at her home at 149 Peachtree Cir.

HOSPITAL NOTE—Mrs. Blanche Knapp has recovered sufficiently to return to her home at 1503 Peachtree St., following surgery at Piedmont Hospital.

DANIEL LORD PORTER, small son of the Edward Porters, was christened Sunday at the Cathedral of Christ the King. The baby was named for the Jesuit priest, the late Father Daniel Lord, an uncle of Mrs. Porter.

Standing as the baby's godparents were Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Guy. Mrs. Guy is the sister of Mrs. Porter, the former Anna Lee Shippen of Atlanta.

She Wants To Help Daughter

By DOROTHY RICKER

I am a faithful reader of your column and as a mother of your age I am sure that you have helped me with my daughters. My problem doesn't sound like much but I am worried. My youngest daughter has just broken up with her boy friend, who is a few years older than she is. She knew I did not want her to go steady, but not because of the boy. He is a very nice boy whom I like very much.

My problem is that now they have broken up, my daughter is very unhappy, terribly so. Although she tries to hide it, she cries at night and is always so thrilled and happy when he comes over.

They are still dating but not regularly. She will not date any other boys and thinks only of Tommy. I don't want to interfere, but is there anything I can do to help her?

I presume you are the cause of your daughter breaking up with Tommy, perhaps because you think she is too young to go steady. So, if I am right, I know it makes it doubly difficult for you to see her so unhappy.

However, I think the more your daughter broods and keeps her feelings bottled up inside herself, the unhappier she will be. I think you should subtly try to get her to talk about the situation. Even though she may be reluctant to do so at first, if you can just convince her you are thoroughly sympathetic she may open up and talk things over with you.

Just talking things over can help, as shown in the letters I receive frequently from youngsters describing problems which they realize are unsolvable. But many say, in effect, "Even though there is nothing you or anyone else can do to help me, thanks for reading my letter and letting me cry on your shoulder. I feel better already."

Another thing you should do is to encourage your daughter to go out with other boys. If she has a close girl friend, perhaps the girl can help you along these lines by trying to arrange double dates.

You didn't mention your daughter's age but if she is 14, 15 or 16 you know, as I do, it is more than likely that she will eventually meet someone who will take Tommy's place. It is difficult to convince many teenagers that their current "love" will not be their last, so, as a result, almost all youngsters go through at least one "broken heart" experience, as your daughter is doing now.

Try to be tolerant and understanding and not too surprised when the day comes (and I believe it will) when she likes another boy and if you mention Tommy she will say, "Tommy? Gosh, Mom, what did I ever see in him?"

BEAUTY SPOT AT REAR OF DOCTORS BUILDING
Dana Brown Visits Rose Section of Plot

He Looks Out Window At Garden of Roses

By YOLANDE GWIN

Looking at the world through rose-colored glasses is a reality to an Atlanta man.

It all happened one day when Paul W. Miller was gazing out the window from his office in the Doctors Building.

Cars in precision-like columns were lined in the parking area behind the building on Pine street.

Mr. Miller, owner of the building, visioned roses growing up and down the area. It was natural, for roses are Mr. Miller's favorite flowers.

IN-TOWN GARDEN
Today one of the city's most beautiful in-town gardens is at the rear of the building, running parallel with the south wing addition, which was completed in 1931.

There are some 50 rose trees there now as well as many bushes of the "peace" variety of tea roses. Interspersed amid the carefully laid beds are such seasonal plants as zinnias, petunias, salvia, pansies, regal lilies, jonquils, tulips, gardenias, camellias, chrysanthemums, pink and white dogwood, cherry laurel trees and many others.

Old-timers around town will recall that it has been many years since flowers bloomed on this lot. The property was bought soon after the turn of the century by the late W. W. Orr. In 1906 the four-story Marlborough Apartments, one of the city's first, was built on the property.

It was a very swank building, and in what was a fashionable residential section of the city. The apartment building had 36 units and two elevators. Everybody talked about them and marveled about progress and how Atlanta was growing. The elevators were among the first in an apartment building.

K. OF C. HALL
As the city grew, the owners, cognizant of the need for office space, converted the apartment into a doctors' building.

A fire in 1930 damaged the building, and from its ruins there arose the present structure, called the W. W. Orr Doctors Building. Prior to the property's purchase by the Orr family, it was the site of the old McLahan residence.

The section on Pine street where Mr. Miller's garden grows was once the site of the old Knights of Columbus Hall.

Keep Trim With Easy Exercises

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Regular exercise is rewarding in many ways to the overweight on a diet. With little activity and limited calories, the body fires burn low and you are apt to feel lethargic and depressed.

Physical activity can rouse the circulation and help you to come alive. For reshaping the figure, there is nothing to equal specific calisthenics.

Today's exercise program is by special request of a career girl who is making excellent progress in reducing. Weary after working all day, she asks for easy exercises specifically designed to slim the middle measurements.

SLIMMING

An exercise routine need not be strenuous. The technique is this: Direct the action through the muscles that need toning, hold the muscle contraction for a slow count of six, and release the movement slowly. Do not hold your breath while holding the movement... breathe normally.

Here are exercises to slim the waist abdomen and hips.

Position: Sit on floor, legs stretched wide apart, arms arched overhead. Pull "slim" through the middle measurement, but keep shoulders relaxed.

KNEES BENT

Movement: Bend sideways toward the left, and as you bend, reach out as far as possible toward left toes. Circle upward again, making a wide arc with fingertips as you reach toward the right side. Bend and reach, then circle slowly, and bend and reach again. Repeat four counts, rest, then repeat

'Roosting' Bagby Escapes Prison Camp in Chatham

"The Roosting Man" and his younger brother, "The Ghost," were back in circulation Monday.

Police said they were notified that William Grady Bagby, 42, "The Roosting Man," escaped from the Chatham County public works camp. His brother, Hubert Bagby, 22, "The Ghost," leaped from a deputy sheriff's car in Atlanta three weeks ago and escaped.

Both are familiar figures along the Fulton and Cobb County banks of the Chattahoochee River. Police worked for more than a year at capturing the elusive brothers.

Stopping by the family home on a routine investigation last April, officers said they found the two hiding in chifforobes. Det. S. E. Smith said Hubert was sentenced in Fulton Superior Court to serve 4 1/2 years on burglary charges and his older brother was given 2 1/2 years on similar charges.

Returned here to testify in a Fulton Superior Court trial three weeks ago, Hubert jumped from a deputy sheriff's car on Ridge Avenue, SW, and vanished. Bill, sent to Chatham County on June 8, got away Monday.

Bill, who holds a five-page police record, was identified as the original "Roosting Man," who lived in trees and terrorized a section of Cobb County 10 years ago. Detectives said Hubert took to his brother in the swamps and demonstrated an even greater degree of swiftness and knowledge of evading arrest.

Smith said he received a telephone call from Hubert following his escape in which the lanky youngster said he was through with crime, but added, "after all them years livin' in the open I just couldn't stand the idea of being cooped up in prison."

"WHAT AM I DOING HERE?"—HONOLULU, H.I., July 22—That's the question both Sampson, a lion cub, and Dawn Breese, 20-month-old daughter of the Honolulu Zoo director, ask as they roll big, bewildered eyes while bathing in a sink in the Breese home. The occasion was a spruce-up for Sampson's special appearance for photographers and children at the zoo. He's been living at the Breese home but is now leaving because he is getting too big, Breese said.

Woods Given Lie Test in Widow Death

Police said Monday a lie detector test to determine if a murder suspect was connected with a second slaying was inconclusive.

The suspect, Henry R. Woods, 19, Negro, was being questioned in the strangulation death of Mrs. Inez Rosser, 62, in a laundry station at 478 Boulevard, NE. Officers said Mrs. Rosser, a widow, was killed 10 days ago and robbed of approximately $140.

Woods was arrested in the bludgeon and knife slaying of Miss Joy Lee McCord in an Edgewood Ave., NE, finance co. office last Friday. Lt. R. E. Little said Woods admitted killing Miss McCord, but denied any connection in the Rosser death although witnesses had identified him as having been seen hanging around the laundry station prior to the slaying.

Record Reviews

Tchaikovsky Sung by His Own People

TCHAIKOVSKY: Eugene Onegin, Solists, chorus and orchestra of the Bolshoi Theater, conducted by Boris Khaikin. 3-record album. Westminster.

Like Italian opera sung at La Scala, this sentimental Russian masterpiece sung by the Bolshoi Theater has that extra authenticity and vigor which can mean only that the home team is performing in its own ball park. It has an especially fine Onegin, too, in baritone Eugene Belov, and a convincing Tatiana in soprano Galina Vishnevskaya. This is not the highest hit, but Westminster does seem to get much better sound from these Russian tapes than anyone else.

TCHAIKOVSKY: Francesca da Rimini, GLINKA: Spanish Overtures Nos. 1 and 2; Symphony on Two Russian Themes, State Symphony Orchestra of the USSR, conducted by Konstantin Ivanov and Alexander Gauk; State Radio Orchestra, conducted by Gauk. Westminster.

Here is showy Russian music, with big climaxes and brilliant tonal colors, somewhat dimmed by the limitations of the sound engineering.

HOLIDAY IN ENGLAND: Band of the Grenadier Guards, conducted by Maj. F. J. Harris. London.

These English folk melodies and light classical pieces, performed by the royal regimental band, will overwhelm with nostalgia anyone who has ever wanted to visit that wonderful island, GRG.

400 Atlanta Shriners Arrive Home 10 Hours Late After Train Mixup

Due to a mix-up in train scheduling, more than 400 members of Atlanta's Yaarab Shrine Temple and their wives were over ten hours late getting back from their trip to Minneapolis, Minnesota.

The local group had been to the Midwestern city to attend the Imperial Council meeting of the Shrine.

The rail delay occurred near Chicago. E. Carter Coble, head of the local group, announced that new Imperial Potentate Thomas Melham of New York City expects to visit Atlanta during the December ceremonial of the Yaarab Temple.

Gas Firm Asks Court To Kill Law

A south Georgia natural gas firm asked Fulton Superior Court Monday to declare unconstitutional a 1956 act dealing with the financing of natural gas systems in Georgia.

The South Georgia Natural Gas Co. asked for the ruling in a declaratory judgment petition in connection with its dispute with Georgia Public Service Commission and another firm over gas service to a number of southwest Georgia counties.

Named defendant in the action besides the PSC was Georgia Coastal Natural Gas Corp. of Alma.

DISPUTED TERRITORY
The petition also asked the court to rule void a certificate of necessity and convenience the PSC granted March 29 to the Alma firm for gas service to the disputed territory.

SGNG contended that the 1956 act, which provides for the issuance of revenue anticipation certificates for the construction of natural gas lines, is unconstitutional because it excludes from its provisions municipalities and counties.

It contends that these political subdivisions are subject to regulations the same as are privately owned and operated utilities.

The plaintiff alleged that the Alma firm, by the nature of the system it proposes, is an interstate firm and is not subject to provisions of the act under which the PSC was acting in its March 29 decision.

"UNLAWFUL REGULATION"
Stretching the act to cover interstate firms would be an "unlawful regulation on interstate commerce," the petition declares.

The petition claims that the evidence before the PSC showed that the Alma firm's system would be "inadequate to meet reasonable public needs" and contended that the PSC issued the certificate to help the Alma firm obtain a gas supply.

The plaintiff, pointing out that it was authorized by the Federal Power Commission to serve portions of southwest Georgia embraced in the Alma firm's proposed system, averred that the PSC was seeking to give the Alma firm a "preference" in competition for the service before the federal agency.

Besides seeking to have the 1956 act ruled void, the petition also asked the court to hold the Alma firm's certificate void. A show cause hearing on the petition was set by Judge Claude D. Shaw for 9:45 a.m. Sept. 13.

Georgia Coastal's certificate covers service to portions or all of the counties of Appling, Bacon, Baldwin, Ben Hill, Brantley, Camden, Charlton, Coffee, Dodge, Emanuel, Evans, Glynn, Irwin, Jeff Davis, Johnson, Laurens, Montgomery, Pierce, Tattnall, Telfair, Tift, Toombs, Troup, Ware, Wayne, Washington, Wheeler and Wilkinson.

Col. Ted Lehman Heads Atlanta's Air Reserve Hub

Lt. Col. Ted R. Lehman of Atlanta is the new commander of the 2689th Air Reserve Center here, succeeding Lt. Col. James W. Thomas, who served in that capacity since 1955.

The center supervises Air Force Reserve training, except for flying units, for the entire state.

Phone Tipster Turns Silent On Slaying

The wavering witness in Atlanta's latest murder mystery Monday appeared to have shrugged off an appeal from the police department to come forward with his information.

Lt. R. E. Little said nothing further had been heard from the man after he failed to keep an appointment made for Sunday and then telephoned to say his attorney had advised him against talking.

Little said it was difficult for him to understand the thinking of a person who deliberately would withhold information in a murder case. He added it was even more difficult to understand why an attorney would give such advice . . . if one actually did.

The caller had promised to meet officers Sunday and divulge information in the robbery slaying last weekend of William K. Pursley, 32, Georgia Tech professor. Pursley was beaten and robbed Friday in the 800 block of Juniper street, NE, officers said. He died the next day in a private hospital.

Officers said the caller inferred he was acquainted with Pursley and saw two youths run him down on Juniper street and beat him.

Quail That Fail To Quai May Gwor on Sale

LONDON, July 22—The Lord Chief Justice of England has ruled quail may be sold legally if they cry "Gwor, gwor," instead of "Quai, quai."

He ruled farmer Frederick Bruton could sell "gwor, gwor" because they are domesticated and no longer come under the Wild Bird Protection Act. He reaffirmed the protection rights of the common or "quai, quai" quail. A poultry firm wouldn't accept Bruton's "gwor, gwor" on the theory every quail was entitled to equal protection under English law.

5 California Towns Join Hunt for Gunman Who Raped Girl, 15, and Killed 2 Police

EL SEGUNDO, Calif., July 22—A vast manhunt was organized today to find the gunman who raped a 15-year-old girl, stole a car, then killed two policemen who stopped him for a traffic violation.

Police from five neighboring communities on the southern fringe of Los Angeles joined in the search after the bodies of El Segundo policemen Richard Phillips, 29, and Milton Curtis, 25, were found at 2:30 a.m.

Phillips was shot three times in the back. Curtis, also shot three times, managed to crawl back into the police car and gasp out a call

Deacon Hugh Butler Still Laughing at 90

Hugh E. Butler passed his 90th birthday this weekend and he's still serving as chairman of the board of deacons of his church.

Butler, a member of the Euclid Ave. Baptist church, is a retired railroad man who has served in some lay capacity in the church for all of his adult life.

His other duties include teaching a Sunday School class at Euclid Ave. Church. He lives at 974 Austin Ave., N.E.

What's his secret: "Keep busy, have a sense of humor, speak to everyone," says Butler, "and keep serving the Lord."

Atlanta Youth Held in State Traffic Death

COLUMBUS, Ga., July 22—Funeral for Mrs. Mamie Cullifer, 27, Columbus' second traffic fatality of 1957, will be held tomorrow at Lakeside Memory Garden Cemetery, Phenix City.

Mrs. Cullifer was injured in a two-car collision here Friday. The woman suffered severe head injuries when thrown from her automobile.

She died Sunday. A 16-year-old Atlanta youth is being held at the juvenile detention home pending a complete investigation of the mishap, according to police.

Juvenile Judge W. Stanford Willis said tonight no formal charges have been placed against the youth.

Fall Off Platform Kills Savannah

SAVANNAH, July 22—A Negro was killed today when he fell 11 feet from a platform while loading oil into a railroad tank car at the Pure Oil plant.

County police said Joseph Singleton of Savannah apparently was trying to pull a catwalk from an 11-foot high platform to the tank car when the accident occurred. Police said the rope with which Singleton was trying to pull the catwalk broke, causing him to lose his balance and fall, breaking his neck.

A Rhyme a Day

"Teen-agers today feel insecure. Much of their misbehavior is directly attributable to that."—Article quote.

Show us someone who is secure . . . someone who's absolutely sure . . . the future will be ever bright . . . that everything will come out right . . . and I will show you ten who fear . . . what they have saved will disappear . . . their health will fail, they'll lose their jobs . . . or something will take place that robs . . . them of the feeling they're secure . . . and all they can do is endure.

I'm sure the "sturdy pioneer" . . . kept going on despite his fear . . . not knowing when some grizzly bear . . . might drag him to his mountain lair . . . or Indian would snatch his scalp . . . before he even hollered "help."

The world is, and has always been . . . a place of danger for all men . . . but they met danger when it came . . . and youngsters now will do the same . . . and if they don't, we'll all be sunk . . . (why do people talk such bunk?)

50-Year Wait Gets His Road

A former rural mail carrier is going to get a road paved near his home after 50 years of trying.

The Rural Roads Authority this week will let a contract for paving a road from Swords to Parks Mill in Morgan County.

In 1908, Fred L. White of Buckhead, a Morgan County community, began his efforts to have the road paved. At that time, he said, the road was part of a Philadelphia-to-New Orleans route.

Monday, nearly 50 years later, White presented to Gov. Griffin a complete file of his correspondence recording his difficulties in connection with the project in the intervening years.

The 73-year-old advocate of good on the port side.

roads warmly praised inauguration by the governor of the Rural Roads Authority program, under which the road will be improved.

BILLY GRAHAM: The Savior Came To Restore Fellowship

QUESTION: God is so high and holy, how can men who are sinners praise Him?—P. L. M.

ANSWER: God made man for fellowship with Himself. When that fellowship was broken by sin, He sent His Son into the world to restore that fellowship for all who would accept Him as Savior and Lord. We who are Christians should have hearts full of praise all the time. The Bible says: "Let every thing that hath breath praise the Lord." The Psalmist says: "I will praise Thee, O Lord my God, with all my heart: I will glorify Thy name for evermore." Praise to God is accomplished in many ways. We praise Him with our lips. The Bible says: "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto thy faithfulness every night." We also praise God by the lives we live. When you show love to other people; when you hold your temper when provoked; when you are honest

A man of wit and wisdom, Benjamin Franklin once quipped, "If you would have guest merry with cheer, be so yourself or so appear."

Billy Graham The Psalmist

when tempted to be dishonest; pure when tempted to lust; kind to others when they are unkind to you; in all of these things we can and do praise God.

The Apostle Paul was very practical. He wanted Christians to live as Christians seven days a week, and wrote: "I beseech you, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." Praising God is a very important and a very practical matter. Thankful and loving hearts naturally turn to the One who has done so much for us.

Alfred Hitchcock

His name is a byword for ghouls, gags and the gruesome! Millions stand in line to see his movies, or crowd the front room to watch his special brand of mayhem on the TV screen!

Now, in this exclusive Saturday Evening Post interview with Pete Martin, the world's most famous master of marrow-chilling suspense opens the creaking door and lets you see inside his own many-faceted world!

You'll laugh, as well as be surprised, as Hitchcock reveals!

- the truth about his interest in crime and the "gruesome"—including his confession that he is terrified of policemen.
- how he gets away with his famous TV-sponsor insults—and why he says they have stopped "questioning the propriety of my cracks."
- why he says he has more creative freedom in television than in the movies.
- why he has a preference for unusual and offbeat humor (with some hilarious examples from his personal joke collection).
- his plans for the coming year on television—and some of the stories he claims TV is too squeamish to let him do.
- his directorial secrets, and how he digs up many of the most spine-tingling touches for his movies.
- some secrets about his personal life (including his penchant for playing ghoulish practical jokes).

It's all there, told in the master's own witty and acid-etched words. So don't miss "I Call on Alfred Hitchcock" by Pete Martin.

Also in this issue:

Children Really are Not People

Many modern psychologists insist that children are practically little adults—just like the rest of us, only smaller. Here's one mother who disagrees with this notion—even argues against the popular idea that we should be friends with our kids. "Let's have no more of this nonsense," says mother Jean Kerr. "Children are a breed apart!"

What is Modern Republicanism?

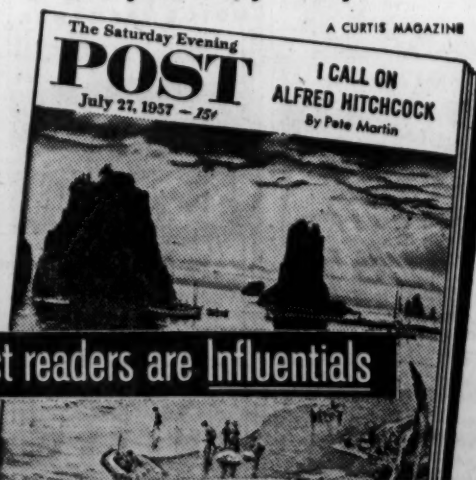

For some time now an inner struggle has been going on within the Republican Party! There has even been talk that Eisenhower really heads a new party! Now, in this week's Post, Washington expert Stewart Alsop clears away the partisan gibberish surrounding the administration's program, and spells out what Ike's political philosophy intends.

FLOYD PATTERSON—history's most unusual heavyweight king!

"My feelings are rather delicate," says Floyd Patterson, the youngest—and least-known—heavyweight king of all time. "You can say something and hurt me very much." What makes this shy and mysterious champion tick—and how will he make out against Hurricane Jackson next week? Be sure to read "The Tenderhearted Champ!"

NEW LIGHT ON FILTER SMOKING:

Make the Tip-off Test and taste which filter cigarette is best!

In any cigarette, it's still the tobacco that counts.
So make this simple test of the tobacco in filter cigarettes.

First, cut off the filter tip from a Hit Parade (at the name). Put the cut end in your mouth—light the other end. You'll be amazed how mild it tastes—even without the filter! That's really fine tobacco!

Then try this same Tip-off Test on any other filter cigarette. You'll taste the difference. You'll want to change to Hit Parade—for the fresh taste of fine tobacco in a filter cigarette!

Sally Stars Turn Back Tigers, 4-1

Gilbert Raps Damage Augusta

By PAUL ATKINSON

AUGUSTA, July 22—The Sally League All-Stars and Augusta, who had said it with homers this season, resorted to the one-base hit to resolve differences here Monday night.

Savannah's Buddy Gilbert rapped out a pair of timely singles for as many runs in a 4-1 All-Star victory before 5,156, largest crowd in recent Jennings Stadium history.

Only Ben Matesky's sky-high 385-foot home run ruined the Stars' all-the-way epher bid in the ninth inning. It came off Cade.

Duffy matched zeroes with Oliva and Swearingen for five in the sixth. Verble's glitter guys had men on base in every frame but couldn't score. The best threat came on back-to-back singles by Verble and Jim St. John with two out in the third, but Curt Flood ended it with a fly ball.

The Stars—or more precisely Savannah—roughed Duffy in the sixth. The Redlegs' Flood doubled off the left field boards, and red-stocking Jim Gilbert sliced a single to left for a run.

Both Oliva and Swearingen were whit-leathered Duffy in their three-inning stints. Matesky's double was the lone hit allowed by Oliva, and he hung up four strikeouts. Swearingen surrendered a Billy Springfield double in the fifth, and pinch-hitter Stan Charnosky, on option from New Orleans, slapped a single in his sixth inning debut. The Columbian struck out two.

Duffy's successor, Simmons, immediately stepped into run difficulty. He walked Columbus' Al Grandcolas to open the eighth. A sacrifice moved Grandcolas to second and Gilbert's smash through the middle got the second Star run in the Savannah second RBI.

Barron, with two for three, led the Stars' eight-hit attack. Matesky had two for three for Augusta.

Victory Puts Smith Back in the Race

By RALPH GREGORY

What a difference a week—and a win—make. Just eight days ago, at West Memphis, Ark., Atlanta Jack Smith saw first place money go floating away when a piston blew eight laps from the finish of a 250-mile NASCAR sanctioned race. That was the fifth time in six races that Smith had led when some sort of engine trouble had crippled his first place chances.

So it was no wonder he told a writer afterward that he was going to give it up, at least as an independent operator.

Saturday night at Hickory, N.C., his 1957 Chevrolet nosed out Lee Petty in a tight duel in a 100-lap race, this time despite additional car trouble. So Monday Smith was back at work preparing his vehicles for a double-date this week, at Norfolk, Va., and Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

"Yes, I said I was going to get out, unless I could find a sponsor, but it'd be kinda hard to quit, I admit," he said. "I'd still like to get a sponsor for it's costing me money to keep running when I'm developing engine trouble all the time. But I guess I'll keep trying."

Smith, a burly, blond native of Atlanta, survived a broken steering wheel at Hickory, drove the last 25 laps with part of the wheel missing to take a three-second victory.

It was 12 years ago that Smith began driving the stocks, at Thomaston when racing was just getting over the World War II layoff. He helped inaugurate the Peach Bowl a year after he became a charter member of NASCAR.

Currently he's fifth in the NASCAR point standings. Blame that quitting talk on a string of bad luck. He won't.

SHORT LAPS—Curtis Turner took a NASCAR convertible feature at Columbia, S.C., Friday to precede Smith's victory. Joe Weatherly finished second in that one, third in the Hickory race. . . . Only once has a Darlington 500 winner gone the distance without a tire change. That was in 1955 when Herb Thomas collected Chevrolet's only victory. . . . Latest to enter the Southern 500 are Cotton Owens and Johnny Allen. Owens will drive a Pontiac, Allen a Plymouth. That brings the list to five. Turner, Paul Goldsmith and Buck Baker have already entered. . . . Drag racing, under NASCAR sanction, is scheduled at Thomasville Airport Sunday with openings for any driver who can qualify his car. Trials begin at 12:30 p.m. . . . Bob Welborn finally passed Joe Weatherly in the NASCAR convertible standings, but only temporarily. Weatherly's second-place finish at Columbia pushed him back to the fore. . . . Buck Baker has a substantial lead in the hardtop battle with 5,416 points.

PIT STOPS—MARC's southern division, dominated by Ros Howard early in the season, has suddenly turned into a gigantic free-for-all for first place. No driver has managed to win more than two firsts in the last dozen late-model races. Charlie Miney and Charley Stone split a pair of firsts over the weekend at Anderson, S.C., and Elberton. . . . With Hudson Rakestraw running in the modern division, the Rakestraw total active in stock car competition is four. Wilbur, Benny and Bobby, all from Dallas, compete in the late-model division.

THE SCHEDULE—NASCAR runs two Grand National races this week, Tuesday night at Norfolk, Va., and Sunday at Winston-Salem, N.C. . . . MARC's southern division runs the professional sportsmen in Wednesday night's Peach Bowl program. . . . The late models run Saturday and Sunday. Saturday night they're at Banks County Speedway in Cornelia and Sunday at Palmer Speedway in Macon. . . . The modern division runs Saturday night at Canton. . . . Jalopies run Friday night at the Peach Bowl.

Brookhaven Post 65 Risks American Legion Crown

Brookhaven Post 65's defending State American Legion junior baseball champions start risking their Fifth District crown Tuesday afternoon at Glenn Field.

Three teams, who as a group have won 82.7 per cent of their pre-tournament games, are the challengers. Manager Bill Livingston's Mickey Cochran Post 216 charges boast the best record, having won 11 of 12 games; Carl Doane's Avondale Post 66ers stand 15-3, and Ed Norris' Post One combine is 17-5-2.

Posts 66 and One start the double-elimination ball rolling at 2 o'clock, with Posts 216 and 65 taking the field immediately afterward.

Jim Cargal, Billy Allison, Larry Rakestraw and Rice Brent give Post 216 a formidable pitching corps. Livingston's hurlers are backed by solid down-the-middle defensive strength.

Doane, who has played a lot of outstanding baseball in his day, rates his lads equal to any in Legion play as defenders. "Our hitting is capable of beating any other team in the district," he added. "Our pitching is above average, and we have a strong bench."

Good pitching and hitting are Post One's arguing point. Al Phillips, Denny McDuffie, Ronnie Gilstrap, Roger King, David Chambers and Jack Orr man the mound for Norris. Catcher Larry Hampton's .444 average and first baseman Jimmy White's .404 top the team's hitters.

The 1956 titlist, Post 65, is said to be in a rebuilding season. The team is composed mostly of young boys, but they'll be battling.

Post One has won two of the last three District championships; Post 66 is seeking its first crown in five seasons, and Post 216 hopes to duplicate Brookhaven's 1956 feat—going all the way their first time out.

Brechin Stops Bears To Hold Vols' Lead

Nashville Escapes, 1-0; Memphis Wallops Barons

Johnny Brechin's shutout pitching stopped Mobile's winning streak at four games Monday night, giving the Nashville Vols a 1-0 victory and keeping them atop their Southern Assn. perch by one half game.

Brechin survived a shaky ninth inning in which the Bears loaded the bases on a single, a walk and an error, all with two outs.

Memphis backed John Buzhardt's seven-hit pitching with a 16-hit onslaught that buried Birmingham, 11-2.

rounds, and the Travs built him a 3-0 cushion.

Four solid singles—by Kern, Ben Downs, Peden and Al Grunwald—raked Nelson for two runs in the first inning, and Downs slapped his 14th home run over right in the third.

Riddle, the hero of this one, and Joyner wrapped singles around an infield out and a walk for the Crackers' first run in the third.

No. 2 came in the seventh when Bob Montag, getting his first hit in 17 road appearances, doubled to right and scored on Jack O'Donnell's single. O'Donnell started in right field.

Morgan doubled to open the eighth, and Joyner drew a free pass. An out later, Taylor singled to left for the tying run. Lefty Jim Miller replaced Spicer, and walked Montag. Phillips singled over center for the 4-3 go-ahead run.

Feden's one-man show against Johnson was then nullified by timely Crackers hits as Evans gave out of pitchers, and the Travs were hurt when Downs was chased in the 10th for arguing. He was safe at first on an infield play.

Frank DiPrima saved the night in the 10th when he completed a double play though rolled savagely by Romberger, who tried to break it up. Both were shaken up on the play.

Nelson, new recruit from Wichita, was racked for seven hits in four innings as the Travs took to his offerings with affection.

In the second game of the series, on Tuesday night, the Crackers' Don Notcutt (12-6) opposes hard-luck Lefty George Brunet (10-9) who hasn't had a run scored for him in exactly one month.

The Crackers remained one-half game behind front-running Nashville in the Southern Association race. Nashville beat Mobile, 1-0.

HENRY'S 'BEST WIN' STUNS SID SCHWARTZ

Atlanta Crawford Henry conquered a siege of flu in time to upset the nation's 14th ranked amateur player in the opening round of the 58th annual Pennsylvania Lawn Tennis Championships Monday afternoon.

The 21-year-old Tulane University star stunned fifth-seeded Sidney Schwartz of Long Beach, N.Y., 6-4, 4-6, 6-4, at the Merion Cricket Club in Haverford, Pa.

Henry last week lost to T. Barten in the National Clay Courts Tournament. He credited his surprising showing against Schwartz to having recovered from a recent bout with flu.

"I caught the flu shortly after I got home from the Intercollegiate," Henry told The Constitution by phone Monday night.

Playing on grass proved a boon to Henry's game. "It's unbelievable how much better I played on grass than clay," he said. "I didn't realize it would make that much difference. Most of the points lasted only two or three rallies. Everybody is always coming to the net here, which is where I play best."

Henry's deep serve and excellent volleying ability are his most important assets, and grass is made to order for him.

"It was my best win," he added.

Henry meets Roger Werksman of California Tuesday. Bob Nichols, another promising young Atlanta player, recently beat Werksman, a tough tennis cookie.

LORINO'S LINK-LEARNING HOPPE'S ALREADY SURVEYING RIGHT-OF-WAY TO TENNESSEE

By MICKEY LOGUE
Auburn halfback Tommy Lorino has been putting around with golf for the first time this summer.

Although he resembles sharp-shooter Ben Hogan in stature, his early scores placed Lorino among the vast fraternity of duffers.

Then the boy from Bessemer, Ala., got into the swing of things. The hundred barrier was the first go. Shortly thereafter he cracked 90. And he's since posted an 82 for a personal record.

His 8.44 yards per stroke at rushing a football last fall far overshadows the best accomplishment of his neophyte golfing career. He led the nation's ball carriers as a sophomore, and is a '57 All-American candidate.

His counterpart in the 1957 Auburn backfield, right halfback Bobby Hoppe, has spent a far more strenuous summer. Senior Hoppe is cutting right-of-way for the City of Chattanooga.

At mid-season in 1956 Hoppe said Tennessee was the game he was really looking forward to most. Auburn's only varsity Tennessee plans to be ready for that opener.

Teddy福特, huge sophomore tackle, probably will find a new nickname awaiting his fall arrival at the Plains. He has been working on a New Orleans tugboat. "Tugboat Teddy" they call him.

Jimmy Phillips, the Southeastern Conference's leading pass receiver last season, and Jerry Wilson, husky Birmingham junior, are working as umpires in Auburn's Little League baseball program.

Speaking of ends, Mike Simmons is life-guarding for a private club in New Jersey, and Leo Sexton is back for six weeks of summer school after vacationing three in New York.

Leon Myers reportedly is not enjoying delicate job of threading needles for cotton mill at Chickamauga. Ken Paduch, another sophomore tackle, is swinging an ax for a Selma, Ala., construction company.

Guard Don Braswell is "fishing" steadily in Albany and working on rainy days. Guard Frank LaRossa works for TCI in Birmingham. Tackle Dan Purina fellowship. Tackle James Warren is toiling for a Valdosta construction outfit.

Sophomore halfback Lamar Rawson lives in Auburn and works at an Opelika box factory. Center Jimmie Ricketts is back at forestry camp.

Center Billy Austin is running his father's farm near Columbus. Halfback Billy Kitchens of Macon attended R.O.T.C. camp. And halfback Jimmy Laster is playing amateur baseball at Covington.

Fullback Eddy Jackson, still handicapped by a broken arm sustained in physical education class, is a water boy for a Demopolis, Ala., gas company.

Right halfback Bobby Lauder was last seen working aboard a deep-sea fishing yacht at Gulf Shores, Ala.

Hapeville, DeKalb Ruths Roll

Hapeville and DeKalb Rebels rode the strong arms of Jimmy Hampton and Jerry Treadwell, two strikeout artists, to opening game victories Monday night in Greater Atlanta Babe Ruth baseball tournament play.

Hampton, who authored a no-hitter during regular season, spaced five safeties and whiffed 11 as he hurled Hapeville to a 6-3 District Four decision over Forest Park before some 1,000 spectators at Hapeville Field.

Treadwell sprinkled eight hits, struck out 10 to delight about 600 fans who watched the District Three Rebels rout Buckhead, 11-4, at McKoy Field.

Hampton also laced a double down the left field line to drive home the winner at Hapeville.

Newnan plays Jefferson Park in a single game Tuesday at Hapeville at 7:45 p.m. McKoy Field twin-bill opens with the Rebels facing Glenwood Hills at 6 p.m., and the DeKalb Confederates battling the West Georgia Stars at 8:30 p.m.

SALT WATER FISH DWINDLING WITH TIDE OF COMMERCIAL NETS

By CHARLES ELLIOTT

I was buried to my shanks in cold sea water. A hundred feet out, the ocean blustered with all its weight against a submerged ridge of sand that paralleled the beach. The crests of the waves curled high, broke and flattened, leaving their tracks in spume. The tide was coming in. I could feel its quickening pulse beat against my knees. Most of the afternoon I had fished that lonely outer beach on one of North Carolina's barrier islands, throwing my lures into the gulches around the underwater "whales." As far as I knew, not a single "drum," as they call channel bass along that ocean front, had come my way to pick up a bait or even bump the line. At sundown, I collected my gear and slogged up the sand spit to the jeep that was waiting to haul us back to the fisherman's hotel.

Charles Elliott

"What's the deal?" I asked. "Last fall we caught a dozen big bass up to 50 pounds, and threw back twice that many 'puppy drum' between 8 and 10 pounds." The manager of the local hostelry wagged his head. "A couple of weeks ago, some boats came in here, threw their nets around this end of the beach and hauled off 18,000 pounds of big drum. They've practically wiped out our fishing for a while." "Why didn't someone stop them?" "It's perfectly legal," he said. That has happened to the salt water fishing in a good many choice spots I know. Some of the states along the Atlantic and Gulf are beginning to do something about it, too. They recognize that such game fish as the channel bass, rock-fish, snook and trout have a far greater value as attractions for visiting anglers than they could ever have as market fish at a few cents a pound. The Georgia Game and Fish Commission has had some discussion about putting a few salt water fighters on the game list, but it has never passed the discussion stage.

Florida took its first step this year by passing a law that designated the snook as a game fish, set daily bag and possession limits on it and made its sale illegal. Texas, with a size limit on its winter trout, took another long stride by establishing a new fishing license that the angler must have if he fishes either fresh or salt water. To residents and non-residents alike, the license costs only $2.15, and Howard Dodgen, director of the Texas Game Commission, tells me that the new money will be spent to improve the briny fishing along the coast of his Lone Star state. Some of the states, and Georgia is one of them, spend tens of thousands of bucks each year to advertise themselves as a mecca for travel-conscious America. If our tourist catchers would take the time to talk with some of those nomads on wheels, they'd probably learn that the greatest tourist dam we have is our fishing. In this category, salt water angling ranks high, and yet the tremendous resource of the sea is one of the most abused we have, with no regulation of any kind to keep it off the skids. It is encouraging that at least some of the states around us have made a move to save their salt water game fish and fishing from complete prostration.

Game Preserves Get Special Hunt Season

State Commissioner Lovell Sets Dates From Oct. 1-Mar. 31

By JIM CARSON

A special hunting season for the growing number of commercial hunting preserves in the state has been set by the Georgia Game and Fish Commission. The preserves, where the shooter pays a fee for killing pen-raised quail or other game birds or animals raised in captivity, will be opened to hunters from Oct. 1 through March 31. In announcing the new regulation, Game and Fish Director Fulton Lovell stated no limit would be placed on pen-raised birds, but that all birds must be banded with an aluminum leg band showing the state, year, owner's permit number and animal number. Each game animal must likewise be tagged with a tag approved by the Game and Fish Commission. All records of preserves must be accurately kept and open for Commission inspection at all times. The regulation also provides that no birds could be brought into the state without approval of the Commission and each preserve operating on a commercial basis must have a license. Persons or firms applying for such a license must make application not less than 90 days prior to the time he will open for business. Copies of the new regulation may be obtained by letter or postcard addressed to the Education and Information Division, Georgia Game and Fish Commission, 412 State Capitol, Atlanta.

'CHIP' OFF THE OLD BLOCK

Hamby, Atlanta's 'Mr. Bullseye,' On Target as Son's Rifle Tutor

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Charles G. Hamby, an Atlanta engraver, is also one of the nation's greatest rifle shots. In 25 years of competitive shooting as a hobby he set several national records and won some 500 medals and trophies. None of the 500 gave him quite the thrill that did the one captured Sunday July 7 by another fellow. The other fellow was Charles G. Hamby Jr., known as "Chip" for what seems to be an obvious reason: he's a chip off the old block. Chip, who will be 16 years old next month, won the marksman class firing plus the junior title in the South Central championships with a score of 3,110 at Chattanooga, Tenn. Rifle Club range. It was the first entire tournament in which he ever fired. He took up shooting only a year ago, under his dad's tutelage.

Chip, a 5-8, 130-pound Marxist student, couldn't have hired so fine a marksmanship tutor as Charles Hamby Sr. for love nor money. The elder Hamby, who went to work for Southern Engraving the same year of 1929 that he started shooting competitively for fun, fired that year for the Georgia Civilian Rifle team at Camp Perry, Ohio. He won his first championship in the north Georgia smallbore matches in 1932 at Ft. McPherson. He won his last the same day young Chip copied his first medal. Charlie Sr. grabbed the over-all title with a grand aggregate of 3,169 out of a possible 3,200, having 182 bullseyes. In between his first and last medal-winning performances the soft-spoken Hamby, who learned to shoot while roaming wooded areas that once were part of West End after getting a .22-rifle as a Christmas present when he was 10 years old, has won more titles, medals, trophies and ribbons than he can remember.

Among the most treasured of his accomplishments to Hamby, who coached the International DeWar rifle team in 1937, is the May 22, 1955, day in Columbus, Ga., when he won his third Southeastern regional smallbore title with an aggregate of 3,197—just two points shy of the world record. He was only two points short of that score in 1954 in the Tennessee State matches.

Then there was his national record of 132 bullseyes at 600 yards that stood for 13 years, another of 99 consecutive bullseyes in 1937 in a Swiss match at St. Petersburg, also a run of 267 bullseyes without any sighting shots at Ft. Mac in the 1930s, and a national mark of 400x38x in a DeWar any-sight match in the north Georgia matches at Ft. Mac in 1937. Hamby, rated third and sixth best rifleman in the U.S. in 1942 and 1946 during the seven years rankings were made, has been on 13 international rifle teams that fired against—and usually beat—Great Britain's best at Camp Perry, Ohio. In 1939 he went to England with a 10-man U.S. team that beat the British for the Gen. John J. Pershing trophy.

But, even with all his championships, finishing second in the 1932 Wimbledon Cup matches was one of his most gratifying experiences. In the famous matches, held since 1904, each rifleman gets 20 shots at 1,000 yards, any rifle, any sights.

Hamby fashioned an improved big caliber, 300 magnum to do the job. He and a sports writer named Taylor from Phoenix, Ariz., each hit the 36-inch bullseye on all shots for the maximum 100 score. But examination of the 20-inch, inner "V-ring" showed Taylor had hit the "middle" 16 times to 15 for Hamby,

Bogart Man Beagle Boss

A Bogart, Ga., man has been named vice president of the newly formed American Beagle Club, Incorporated.

Jack T. Phillips was elected to the post at the club's organizational meeting in Towanda, Pa., last week.

The American Beagle Club is a nonprofit organization with the purpose of providing beagle and basset owners and sports with uniform rules to govern shows and field trials, establish standards of exhibiting, breeding, running, hunting and purchasing and to prevent and detect frauds in such.

The organization also will publish an official magazine designed to report and promote study of the beagle and basset breeds.

Georgia Sets Deer Study

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP)—The Interior Department and 10 Southern states are cooperating in a study of sharply increased death rate among white-tailed deer.

A contract has been awarded to the University of Georgia to make the study. The university will provide the scientific and laboratory services necessary for the project. Work will be done in the field at the scene of outbreaks as they occur, and in the laboratory and on test herds. The study will cover deer diseases and nutrition problems, with attention on toxicity in plants as a possible cause of the heavy mortality of the deer. The states participating are Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee, South Carolina, Virginia and Maryland.

Food Plentiful Here for Ducks

If early indications mean anything, the Georgia Game and Fish Commission's Altamaha Waterfowl Refuge will have plenty of food for migrating ducks this winter.

Reports from Darien say both planted and volunteer crops of millet and other foods are off to a good start. Waterfowl biologist Alvin P. Cannon is in the process of renovating several hundred acres of marshlands that have been dried by the recently completed dike.

Latest reports from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service say that waterfowl are off to a good nesting start in Canada.

Loot's in Shrimp

The shrimp industry is the most lucrative of all American commercial fishing enterprises. It produces about 225 million pounds of shrimp annually, valued at about 50 million dollars, according to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

CONSTIPATED?

new laxative discovery
un-locks bowel blocks

without gag, bloat or gripe

Constipation is caused by what doctors call a "thrifty" colon. A "thrifty" colon is one that, instead of retaining moisture as it should, does the opposite: robs the colon of so much moisture that its contents become dehydrated, so dry that they block the bowel; so shrunken that they fail to excite or stimulate the urge to purge that propels and expels waste from your body.

TO REGAIN NORMAL REGULARITY two things are necessary. First, the dry, shrunken contents of your colon which now block your bowel must be re-moistened. Second, bulk must be brought to your colon to S-T-R-E-T-C-H STIMULATE it and so, excite its muscles to action; to a normal urge to purge.

AND, OF ALL LAXATIVES, only COLONOID, the amazing new laxative discovery possesses COLONOID's great moisturizing capacity plus COLONOID's stretch-stimulating bulk that activates normal colonic reflexes. So effective that it relieves even chronic constipation overnight, COLONOID is yet so smooth, so gentle it has been proved safe even for women in the most critical stages of pregnancy.

SUPERIOR TO OLD STYLE bulk, salt or drug laxatives, COLONOID neither gags, bloats nor gripes; does not interfere with your absorption of vitamins and other valuable food nutrients; and in clinical tests, did not cause rash or other side reactions.

IT'S A PHYSIOLOGICAL FACT: Exercise tones your body! And COLONOID exercises your colon to tone it against constipation, overnight! Whether occasional, frequent or chronic, whatever your degree of constipation, get COLONOID, in easy-to-take tablet form at any drug counter, today! The price, only 98c for the economical 60 tablet package, brings you positive relief at less than 2c per tablet.

AS I SEE IT Sales, Not Trendex, Dictate TV Schedule

By PAUL JONES

Do the ratings actually mean as much to the TV sponsor as you have been led to believe?

The folks who run the audience surveys may want you to believe they do. The sponsors seem to think a good rating has an influence on their viewing habits.

But, isn't it the viewer's pocketbook—not his viewing habits—that eventually dictates which shows he will watch on television?

If you will study your TV schedule in the morning paper, you will see, right off, that many of the shows now regularly featured on television are not among the top 10 or even the top 20. But, do sponsors cancel these shows because they don't pull the big audiences?

No. The sponsors of these "also-rans" are not looking for ratings—but sales. And, since the shows they're sponsoring continue to sell merchandise, they continue to put up the bank roll for the shows.

The Danny Thomas Show, the Ted Mack Amateur Hour, I've Got a Secret, the Burns and Allen show, Bob Crosby, to name a few, are viewed regularly on television. As far as we know, none of these shows has ever challenged Ed Sullivan for his Trendex championship.

But, most of these shows sell merchandise, or, you may be sure, they wouldn't be on television. That's a lead pipe cinch.

ON THE OTHER HAND, we are led to believe that Sid Caesar and Jackie Gleason and some others were dropped because their Trendex began to tumble.

Do the sponsors mean to imply that, if Gleason and Caesar had been peddling their products they would have choked the goose that was laying the golden eggs?

No. The simple truth is that when sales begin to sag, the sponsors begin to get chinchy with their do-re-mi.

It just so happens, in many instances, that sales and rating failures often coincide.

But, a show does not have to

Japan Sentences GI in Robbery

OSAKA, Japan, July 22 (UP)—A Japanese court today sentenced an 18-year-old American airman to an indeterminate prison term at hard labor for robbery and illegal possession of firearms.

Airman 3C Lewis R. Bryant, of Denham Springs, La., was found guilty of holding up a Japanese cab driver at pistol-point Feb. 22 and robbing him of $3.60.

The court said it took into consideration Bryant's age and compensation he made to the victim. Bryant was ordered to serve a term of from two and a half to four years.

Sid, Imogene Reunited for A Fall Series

NEW YORK, July 22 (UP)—Comedian Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca, the first of his three television "wives," were reported tonight planning a reconciliation this fall.

The comedy team split up three years ago, amid tears, confusion and explanations, and both went their separate ways.

Caesar took on Nanette Fabray as his "wife" on his new hour-long show and when that "marriage" also went on the rocks he hooked up with Janet Blair.

But neither Caesar nor Coca has prospered apart. She currently is appearing in a road show of the play "Janus" and Caesar's show was dropped by NBC last month because of dwindling audience ratings.

The New York Herald Tribune reported Caesar has confirmed he is dickering for a new half-hour show with Miss Coca.

"It will be a condensed form of 'Caesar's Hour,' he was quoted as saying. 'I'm not at liberty to say at this time where it'll be shown because nothing's been finalized as yet. I'm happy that Imogene will be with me.'"
